M'NEAL CASE IS GIVEN TO JURY TODAY

Seven Women, Five Men Deliberate on Statutory Charge of Girl

CLAIM IS DENIED

Arguments and Charge Heard After Lunch

The fate of Newell McNeal, 50, Williamsport stock dealer and filling station proprietor, was placed in the hands of a jury of seven women and five men shortly after 2 p. m. Wednesday. McNeal denied statutory charges brought against him by Margaret Pontius, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pontius of Deercreek-twp.

When court adjourned for lunch at noon only two arguments, that of C. A. Weldon for the defense, and that of Emmitt L. Crist, prosecutor, remained besides the charge of Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

The penalty for the crime with which McNeal is charged is from three to 20 years in the penitentiary.

DENIES CHARGES

McNeal in direct and cross examination denied charges of rape brought by the Pontius girl. She told of being with the man, married and the father of one daughter, on the night of Nov. 28, 1931, after she met him at a local theatre. She related events of the evening during her testimony.

The Williamsport man said he was in Kentucky on Nov. 28, 1931, purchasing stock and that he did not arrive at his home until late that night. He showed receipts which he said had been given him after paying for cattle and shoats. The latter were purchased from Harry Shannon of Hillsboro on the same trip, Mr. McNeal said.

HEAR WITNESSES

Other witnesses heard before the case was brought to a close were Harry Dunlap of Williamsport, Margaret Miller, ticket-seller at the Cliftona theatre and Mr. Shannon of Hillsboro, all for the defense. For the state the Pontius girl, her father and mother, Ray Maddux of Williamsport, Dr. Glen D. Sheets of Williamsport, and Curtis Wertman of this city, who said he saw the Pontius girl in McNeal's car on a Saturday night late last fall.

Jurors who will decide whether or not Mr. McNeal is innocent include:

Grace Alspaugh, Madison-twp;
Alice Balthaser, Walnut-twp;
Joe Thomas, Wayne-twp;
G. W. Winfough, Monroe-twp;

FOUR AT MEETING

Red Cross Regional Session Being Held In Chillicothe Hotel Today.

Four local persons represented Pickaway-co at the American Red Cross regional conference in which 17 chapters took part in a meeting at Chillicothe Wednesday. Frank A. Lynch, roll call chairman, Miss Agnes Butch, Mrs. Arthur Wiegand and Mrs. Paul Betz attended from this city.

A number of experienced Red Cross speakers were listed on the program. Fred C. Spalding, general field representative, made the opening address on "The Purpose of the Regional Conference." He was followed by F. A. Ross of Lawrence-co and Judge J. W. Watts of Hillsboro who gave five minute talks on "Outstanding Features of Our Chapter Program This Year."

Maurice Reddy, assistant director of disaster relief of Washington D. C., spoke at the morning session on "Vitalizing Community Forces to Meet the Present Need." A luncheon was held at the Warner hotel at noon and an afternoon program was to be filled with talks and reports of various chapters.

DEFY SETTLEMENT

CROOKSVILLE, Sept. 21.—Disregarding the formal end of the Ohio coal strike, pickets massed at the Manhattan Coal Company's No. 51 and 52 mines today and prevented miners from going to work, charging the coal company has violated terms of the strike settlement.

Love Me, Love My Dog!

He may not be the prettiest thing in the world, but little Betty Wade, of Newark, N. J., thinks this English bull is the best and most faithful friend a girl ever had. Though the dog has not won any prizes for facial beauty, he has been declared the best dog of his breed on three occasions, the latest at the annual show of the Tuxedo Kennel Club (N. Y.). Betty's sweet smile offsets the stern aspect of her pet.

ELM FUND NOW NEARING GOAL

Less Than $200 Needed To Complete Amount Sought To Aid Logan Elm.

The Logan Elm fund is now within $200 of its goal of $900 according to figures disclosed Wednesday. The amount is being raised by three newspapers, The Herald, the Ohio State Journal, and the Chillicothe Scioto Gazette, for rehabilitation of the tree.

Tuesday, The Herald forwarded a check for $56 to the Logan Elm editor of the Journal where the fund is being centered, and Wednesday another check for $42 50 was mailed.

In the last check, $28 was contributed by the Hocking Valley Livestock Sales Co., which auctioned off a baby beef the proceeds to go to the fund. The beef was purchased by the Baumann Brothers Packing Co of Lancaster. The beef weighed 420 pounds and brought $25.20, 12 cents a pound The sales company added enough money to make the fund $28

A check for $5 from the Ebenezer Social Circle, Mrs. Marvin Dreisbach treasurer, and a check for $7.50 from the Pickaway-twp school were also included in the amount.

TWO WOMEN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Irma Clarke, 50, of Chillicothe, Suffers Possible Fractured Skull

COURT, MAIN SCENE

Stoutsville Car Also Figures in Wreck

Two women suffered painful and serious injuries and six other persons escaped injury in an auto accident at Main and Court-sts at 11:50 p. m. Tuesday.

Miss Irma Clarke, aged 50, of 355 Riverside-st, Chillicothe, and Miss Ruth Schreck, aged 26, of the same address, are in Berger hospital the former with a broken collar bone and a serious head injury which may prove a fracture and the latter suffering from minor bruises and cuts, following the collision.

ONE UNINJURED

Mrs. Hazel Moore of Chillicothe, who was with the other women, escaped injury.

The collision occurred, police declared, when the brakes of a Buick sedan failed to take hold as the driver, Russell Miller of R. F. D. 1, Stoutsville, attempted to stop at the Main and Court-sts intersection. Miss Schreck, driving a Ford tudor car was going south on Court-st. The machines collided at the northwest corner of the intersection.

Other occupants of the Miller car included Porter Miller, Charles Carnet and Walden Murlette, all of R. F. D. 1, Stoutsville. None of them was injured.

NEITHER GOING FAST

The injured women were taken to the hospital by Miller Fissell, deputy sheriff, and Ray Smith, night desk sergent.

Miss Clarke was removed to Chillicothe City Hospital at noon Wednesday.

Neither of the cars was traveling at a fast rate of speed, possibly averting a fatal accident.

CHICAGO IRED AS INNOCENT BOY, GIRL BADLY MANGLED BY BOMB

Youth, Eyes Gone and Body Crushed, Kicks Brown Package in Front of Judge's Home; All Police Agencies of City in Action

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Cruelly mangled, a boy and a girl lay in agony on hospital beds today, innocent victims of a dynamiting bombing in front of the home of Judge John P. McGoorty, relentless enemy of the underworld.

Amazed at the effrontery of gangland's latest gesture of defiance and its tragic consequences, all law enforcement authorities of the city and county marshalled their forces in a manhunt seldom paralleled for intensity in Chicago's history.

The boy, Lee Wilbur Koepeen, 16, and the girl, Mrs. Ada Moyer, a 16-year-old mother, were blown off their feet and hurled to the sidewalk by the blast as they were strolling along the street in front of Judge McGoorty's home last night.

HORRIBLY MANGLED

The youth, who playfully kicked the brown package containing the dynamite just before it exploded, was the most seriously injured. His eyes were gone; both of his legs were shattered; and his entire body was pitifully broken.

"Why can't I see, doctor?" he moaned. "It's all black."

The girl-mother faced the loss of her sight. Her frail body was covered with burns and lacerations.

Every available policeman and detective, as well as the state's attorney investigators, were thrown into the search for the perpetrators of the bombing

HUNT CRIMINAL

"Find 'Fur' Sammons and bring him in!" was the word flashed to all policemen by Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms.

James "Fur" Sammons, convicted murderer, was returned to Joliet state prison by Judge McGoorty last year, only to be released on a writ of habeas corpus last July. Authorities, among other theories, conjectured that Sammons might have sought revenge on the judge who sent him back to prison after he had been freed on parole.

The judge and his family—two daughters and one son—narrowly escaped death or injury in the blast, which shattered all the windows of their home. They were sitting in the living room. Had they been in the library upstairs, where a heavy chandelier tumbled to the floor, their lives would have been endangered.

GASPS HIS STORY

Young Koepeen and Mrs. Moyer were walking together with the youth's brother, Fred, 22, and Betty Lewis, 19, who were some distance to the rear. Gasping out his broken story to officers from his hospital bed, the boy said he noticed a smoking brown paper package on the sidewalk. Thinking that someone had touched a match to the paper, the youth kicked the parcel. It exploded beneath his feet.

Hearing the blast, the judge and his son, Robert, rushed out of the house. Fred Koepeen was holding

Following an investigation, officials determined that Smith had no connection with the Betts murder.

White Is Refused Dry Aid

Anti-Saloon League to Ignore Both Gubernatorial Candidates

COLUMBUS, Sept. 21.— The Ohio Anti-Saloon League has decided it cannot give its endorsement to its old friend, Governor George White, in his campaign for reelection, Superintendent S. P. McNaught declared today.

By speaking out for "good, palatable beer" shortly before the Democratic national convention, at which he was a presidential possibility, the governor catalogued himself as "too wet" to win the league's support, notwithstanding his long record as a prohibition supporter.

The league will therefore withhold its endorsement from both White and his Republican rival, David S. Ingalls, whom it fought bitterly in the state primary. Due to past hostilities, it has been taken for granted that Ingalls' candidacy would not be approved by the league.

BOTH TOO WET

"Both candidates," asserted McNaught today. "are too wet. There is no need to apply a measuring stick to see which is the wettest. We obviously can endorse neither."

For the first time in many years the league's "white list" of approved candidates will contain no names of gubernatorial candidates. Two years ago White's name was there beside that of Former Governor Myers Y. Cooper. This year both White and Ingalls will be blacklisted, McNaught made clear. They will simply be ignored.

"Dripping wets" in the eyes of the league, U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley and Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, Democratic and Republican candidates, respectively, for the U. S. senate, will both be refused endorsement, McNaught said.

It is possible both will be blacklisted.

QUIET ON PRESIDENCY

The Ohio league's attitude toward the governorship is the same adopted nationally toward the presidential race. The league has announced at Washington that it will make no choice between President Hoover and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

McNaught explained that the Ohio league considers its greatest fight is in the election of congressmen and state legislators.

"A governor cannot do much about changing the prohibition laws," he said. "It is the legislature that acts. We are intent upon electing a dry legislature and dry congressman; that is our battle."

RAIN TO CONTINUE

Dr. Clarke Records .37 of An Inch Since Tuesday; Mercury Lower.

With .37 of an inch of rainfall recorded since Tuesday afternoon and considerable more rain in sight, an answer to many prayers offered during the past two weeks had been received Wednesday. Almost a steady rain was recorded beginning at 11 p. m. Tuesday and was continuing at 1 p. m. Wednesday.

Dr. H R. Clarke, weather observer, based the origin of the rain to a disturbance which came in from the Gulf of Mexico going up the Mississippi valley. "Considerable more rain can be expected," Dr Clarke said

And with Jupe Pluvius' offering came a drop in temperatures. The highest mark Tuesday, recorded before the rain, was 86 degrees. The mercury fell to 66 for a low mark during the night.

Scothorn, Walnut-twp, and Conrad Weidinger, Muhlenberg-twp.

IRON-NERVED MINER IS STURDY PERSON

ELKINS, W. Va., Sept. 21.—West Virginia, where men are men, produced another sturdy specimen today.

Walter Pase, 35, a miner, had his left arm ripped to shreds of flesh in a conveyor belt.

The nearest hospital was two miles away.

Pase held the left arm in place with his right arm, gripping an artery tightly with his right hand, and hiked the two miles to the hospital.

The arm was amputated.

CHILD FALLS THREE STORIES IS UNHURT

CINCINNATI, Sept. 21—Despite a three-story fall, one-year-old George Middleton was none the worse today. The infant fell through a stairway in an apartment building, but received only a slight bruise on the head.

STRIFE ASSERTED IN STAR MARRIAGE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 21.—Marian Nixon, blonde screen actress, and her husband, Edward Hillman, Jr., millionaire Chicagoan, have come to the parting of the ways, friends of the pair revealed.

Miss Nixon was said to have moved from Hillman's big Beverly Hills home to a hotel. At her studio, however, it was said that the screen star claimed divorce rumors were unfounded.

TWO WOMEN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Irma Clarke, 50, of Chillicothe, Suffers Possible Fractured Skull

COURT, MAIN SCENE

Stoutsville Car Also Figures in Wreck

Two women suffered painful and serious injuries and six other persons escaped injury in an auto accident at Main and Court-sts at 11:50 p. m. Tuesday.

Miss Irma Clarke, aged 50, of 355 Riverside-st, Chillicothe, and Miss Ruth Schreck, aged 26, of the same address, are in Berger hospital the former with a broken collar bone and a serious head injury which may prove a fracture and the latter suffering from minor bruises and cuts, following the collision.

ONE UNINJURED

Mrs. Hazel Moore of Chillicothe, who was with the other women, escaped injury.

The collision occurred, police declared, when the brakes of a Buick sedan failed to take hold as the driver, Russell Miller of R. F. D. 1, Stoutsville, attempted to stop at the Main and Court-sts intersection. Miss Schreck, driving a Ford tudor car was going south on Court-st. The machines collided at the northwest corner of the intersection.

Other occupants of the Miller car included Porter Miller, Charles Carnet and Walden Murlette, all of R. F. D. 1, Stoutsville. None of them was injured.

NEITHER GOING FAST

The injured women were taken to the hospital by Miller Fissell, deputy sheriff, and Ray Smith, night desk sergent.

Miss Clarke was removed to Chillicothe City Hospital at noon Wednesday.

Neither of the cars was traveling at a fast rate of speed, possibly averting a fatal accident.

MT. GILEAD, Sept. 21. —Two men were dead and Mrs. Ivan Berry of Birmingham, Ala., was in a critical condition today after a truck and an automobile crashed into each other on a narrow bridge near here last night.

M'KEE TO HOLD JOB AS MAYOR

Supreme Court Judge Rules That Mayor's Election Cannot Be Held

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Mayor Joseph V. McKee will remain in office until Jan. 1, 1934, and there will be no mayoralty election this year under a decision handed down today by Supreme Court Justice John McGeehan.

The court upheld McKee's contention that when he succeeded to the office vacated by James J. Walker, it was for the remainder of Walker's term.

An appeal is certain to be taken to the Court of Appeals by Tammany Hall and others who hold that an election must be held this year.

LA FOLLETTE IS DEFEATED

Former Governor, Conservative, Far In Lead; Senator Blaine Losing.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 21.—The House of La Follette, dominant in Wisconsin politics for a generation, was defeated by a wide margin in yesterday's primary, according to incomplete returns today.

Former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, conservative manufacturer and supporter of President Hoover, held a lead of nearly 100,000 votes over Gov. Phil LaFollette for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination.

Out of the state's 2,899 precincts, 2,436 gave; Kohler, 330,586; LaFollette, 259,301.

Another member of the "Progressive" camp for whom defeat seemed inevitable was the veteran U. S. Senator John J. Blaine. With three-fourths of the state's precincts reporting, he was 15,000 votes behind John B. Chapple, the fighting editor of Ashland.

REPORT ROBBERY OF BANK SOLVED

URBANA, Sept. 21.—The $750 robbery of the bank of North Lewisburg Monday was reported solved here today with the arrest of a man whose identity Champaign-co officials refused to reveal.

According to reports, the man being held has been identified by John Thompson, president of the bank.

DRUNK IS JAILED

Andrew Redd of Walnut-twp, was to be given a hearing before Mayor B. T. Hedges Wednesday, following his arrest by Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong Wednesday morning on a charge of intoxication.

A warrant for his arrest was signed by his wife, Mrs. Ivy Redd, who charged that "he was carrying on beyond control."

Deputy Armstrong claimed that Redd had been drinking "varnish remover."

CHICAGO IRED AS INNOCENT BOY, GIRL BADLY MANGLED BY BOMB

Youth, Eyes Gone and Body Crushed, Kicks Brown Package in Front of Judge's Home; All Police Agencies of City in Action

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Cruelly mangled, a boy and a girl lay in agony on hospital beds today, innocent victims of a dynamiting bombing in front of the home of Judge John P. McGoorty, relentless enemy of the underworld.

Amazed at the effrontery of gangland's latest gesture of defiance and its tragic consequences, all law enforcement authorities of the city and county marshalled their forces in a manhunt seldom paralleled for intensity in Chicago's history.

The boy, Lee Wilbur Koepeen, 16, and the girl, Mrs. Ada Moyer, a 16-year-old mother, were blown off their feet and hurled to the sidewalk by the blast as they were strolling along the street in front of Judge McGoorty's home last night.

HORRIBLY MANGLED

The youth, who playfully kicked the brown package containing the dynamite just before it exploded, was the most seriously injured. His eyes were gone; both of his legs were shattered; and his entire body was pitifully broken.

"Why can't I see, doctor?" he moaned. "It's all black."

The girl-mother faced the loss of her sight. Her frail body was covered with burns and lacerations.

Every available policeman and detective, as well as the state's attorney investigators, were thrown into the search for the perpetrators of the bombing.

HUNT CRIMINAL

"Find 'Fur' Sammons and bring him in!" was the word flashed to all policemen by Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms.

James "Fur" Sammons, convicted murderer, was returned to Joliet state prison by Judge McGoorty last year, only to be released on a writ of habeas corpus last July. Authorities, among other theories, conjectured that Sammons might have sought revenge on the judge who sent him back to prison after he had been freed on parole.

The judge and his family—two daughters and one son—narrowly escaped death or injury in the blast, which shattered all the windows of their home. They were sitting in the living room. Had they been in the library upstairs, where a heavy chandelier tumbled to the floor, their lives would have been endangered.

GASPS HIS STORY

Young Koepeen and Mrs. Moyer were walking together with the youth's brother, Fred, 22, and Betty Lewis, 19, who were some distance to the rear. Gasping out his broken story to officers from his hospital bed, the boy said he noticed a smoking brown paper package on the sidewalk. Thinking that someone had touched a match to the paper, the youth kicked the parcel. It exploded beneath his feet.

Hearing the blast, the judge and his son, Robert, rushed out of the house. Fred Koepeen was holding

GOV. ROOSEVELT TO INVADE CALIFORNIA

Nominee To Speak on Utilities In Portland, Ore., Pleased With Trip.

ABOARD ROOSEVELT SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 21.—Confident that he has the support of the Pacific northwest, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt turned southward into Oregon today preparatory to invading President Hoover's home state of California for a stretch of intensive campaigning.

The Democratic nominee will spend the entire day in Oregon, most of it in Portland, and tonight will deliver one of the major speeches of his western invasion there. It will deal with public utilities and their regulation. It is a subject in which he is particularly interested and one of particular interest to the west.

No Democratic presidential nominee except Wilson, in 1912 the year of the great split, has carried Oregon, but Gov. Roosevelt invaded it today with assurances from state leaders that this year it is Democratic territory.

HI-Y INVITED TO CHILLICOTHE MEET

The Circleville Hi-Y club will be invited to attend a week-end Hi-Y conference to be held at Chillicothe later in the fall, at which time other clubs from Lancaster, Washington C. H., Frankfort and Chillicothe clubs will attend.

A conference held at Portsmouth over the past week-end for the Hi-Y officers of the Chillicothe, Jackson and Portsmouth clubs was very successful.

The meeting will be held at the Chillicothe Country Club. Speakers will be Hugh Huntington, Columbus attorney; Robert Q. Baker of Coshocton, President of the Ohio Bankers Association; and David M. Auch, Secretary of the Association.

The meeting starts with a luncheon at twelve-thirty. The business program will be devoted to the discussion of banking practices and politices.

Officers of Group Four are; Chairman, Clark Will, Vice President Third National Bank, Circleville; Vice Chairman, C. N. Winkle Asst. Cashier, The Merchants National Bank, Hillsboro; Secretary-Treasurer, J. H. Newvahner, President, First National Bank, Jackson.

The counties comprising the group are Adams, Brown, Clinton, Fayette, Gallia, Highland, Lawrence, Pickaway, Pike, Ross, Scioto and Vinton.

JEWEL THEFT IS REPORTED

Columbus Police Investigate Report of Bexley Real Estate Dealer.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 21.—Diamonds and other jewelry valued at $4,500 have been stolen from his home in Bexley, fashionable Columbus suburb, sometime since Sunday, Louis Golden, Columbus realtor, today reported to police.

The valuables were taken from the drawer of a dressing stand, Golden said.

A platinum dinner ring set with 34 diamonds and valued at $3,000, a platinum brooch of 39 diamonds, valued at $1,000, a $200 cameo brooch, a $250 pair of platinum cuff links set with four diamonds, and a $75 Masonic ring made up the loot taken by the robbers, Golden said.

The $3,000 dinner ring contained 32 small diamonds set in a cluster with a 1½ karat center diamond and two end diamonds of one karat each.

Golden said the jewels were insured against robbery and that the entire loss would be covered.

HENRY CRABB DIES

Henry Crabb, 49, an inmate of the Pickaway-co infirmary for the past 19 years, died there Wednesday at 2:30 a. m. following a two weeks' illness of complications.

Funeral services will be held at the Rinehart funeral home at 10 a. m. Friday with Rev. L. D. Young, officiating. Burial will be made in Forest cemetery.

BLAMED SELF FOR MURDER, IS INSANE

URBANA, Sept. 21. — Adjudged insane by three Urbana physicians, Clifford Smith of Springhill, today was taken to the Lima State Hospital for Criminal Insane by Sheriff E. A. Biggert.

Smith has been in custody of county authorities here since his "confession" recently that he was the slayer of Joe Betts, Urbana insurance man, two years ago.

Following an investigation, officials determined that Smith had no connection with the Betts murder.

White Is Refused Dry Aid

Anti-Saloon League to Ignore Both Gubernatorial Candidates

COLUMBUS, Sept. 21.— The Ohio Anti-Saloon League has decided it cannot give its endorsement to its old friend, Governor George White, in his campaign for reelection, Superintendent S. P. McNaught declared today.

By speaking out for "good, palatable beer" shortly before the Democratic national convention, at which he was a presidential possibility, the governor catalogued himself as "too wet" to win the league's support, nothwithstanding his long record as a prohibition supporter.

The league will therefore withhold its endorsement from both White and his Republican rival, David S. Ingalls, whom it fought bitterly in the state primary. Due to past hostilities, it has been taken for granted that Ingalls' candidacy would not be approved by the league.

BOTH TOO WET

"Both candidates," asserted McNaught today. "are too wet. There is no need to apply a measuring stick to see which is the wetter. We obviously can endorse neither."

For the first time in many years the league's "white list" of approved candidates will contain no names of gubernatorial candidates. Two years ago White's name was there beside that of Former Governor Myers Y. Cooper, Republican. White and Ingalls will not be blacklisted, McNaught made it clear. They will simply be ignored.

"Dripping wets" in the eyes of the league, U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley and Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, Democratic and Republican candidates, respectively, for the U. S. senate, will both be refused endorsement, McNaught said.

It is possible both will be blacklisted.

QUIET ON PRESIDENCY

The Ohio league's attitude toward the governorship is the same adopted nationally toward the presidential race. The league has announced at Washington that it will make no choice between President Hoover and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

McNaught explained that the Ohio league considers its greatest fight is in the election of congressmen and state legislators.

"A governor cannot do much about changing the prohibition laws," he said. "It is the legislature that acts. We are intent upon electing a dry legislature and dry congressman; that is our battle."

RAIN TO CONTINUE

Dr. Clarke Records .37 of An Inch Since Tuesday; Mercury Lower.

With .37 of an inch of rainfall recorded since Tuesday afternoon and considerable more rain in sight, an answer to many prayers offered during the past two weeks had been received Wednesday. Almost a steady rain was recorded beginning at 11 p. m. Tuesday and was continuing at 1 p. m. Wednesday.

Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather observer, based the origin of the rain to a disturbance which came in from the Gulf of Mexico going up the Mississippi valley. "Considerable more rain can be expected," Dr. Clarke said.

And with Jupe Pluvius' offering came a drop in temperatures. The highest mark Tuesday, recorded before the rain, was 86 degrees. The "merc" fell to 66 for a low mark during the night.

ADMIRAL SLAIN

SHANGHAI, Sept. 21.—Admiral Wu Kwang-Sung, chief of the hydrographic bureau of the Chinese government, was assassinated today.

Three men forced an entrance into his house in the Chapel district, scene of bloody encounters during the Japanese invasion, and shot him to death.

CORRECTION

I. B. Weiler, N. Pickaway-st grocer, did not figure in the accident at Franklin and Court-sts Tuesday morning, as was erroneously stated in Tuesday's Herald. James Wickensimer of this city was the driver of the car.

TIGERS MUST HALT LAFEVRE, HAWKINS

If Circleville is to have a chance of defeating the Lancaster high school varsity Friday night when the teams meet under the lights in that city, Coach Herberholz must be able to develop a versatile defense to halt the line plunges of Fullback LaFevre, and the sweeping end runs and classy passes of Quarterback Paul Hawkins, colored flash, who will be remembered for his activities in the last two games the two teams have played.

LaFevre was a substitute last year, playing second fiddle to Glassford who did the greater part of his team's line smashing. Now that he is a regular he has blossomed forth into a coach's ideal, an athlete who can smash low through the line then get his bearings as soon as he is through.

HAWKINS CAPTAIN

Hawkins is one of the few colored boys to be named captain of a high school grid team nevertheless that is his honor, and a well-deserved one. He has been the star of the team for two years.

Last Friday against Lancaster St. Mary's scrappy bunch of Irish coached by Frank McDevitt, former St. Xavier athlete, the high school team scored a 12-0 victory, LaFevre going over for both touchdowns through the center of the line. The goals came early in the first and third periods.

The Tiger opponent gained 13 first downs and completed four passes. The team was also penalized 60 yards during the fray.

A profit of $400 was divided between the two teams.

SELL TICKETS HERE

E. I. Gephart, high school principal and faculty manager of athletics, announced Wednesday that he has placed tickets in the hands of members of the grid squad and has placed others on sale in several downtown stores. This contest is counted as a Circleville home game and the Tigers get a much better percentage of money from tickets sold here than they do in Lancaster. It would help the school athletic department considerably if those who plan to attend the game would get tickets here. They cost 35 cents for adults and 20 cents for students.

As yet no intimation of who the officials will be has been heard.

From present indications the two football teams will lineup something like this Friday evening:

PROBABLE LINEUPS

Tigers—Hegele and K. Hill, ends; Rooney and Robison, tackles; Miller and either Gordon or Cook, guards; Wallace, center; White, quarter; G. Hill, fullback, Speakman and either Davis or Steele, halfbacks.

Lancaster—Snyder and J. Beach, ends; Mills and Morris, tackles; Cann and Meier, guards; Light, center; Hawkins, quarterback; LaFevre, fullback; Welch and B. Beach, halfbacks.

Amateur Trophy Canada-Bound

Following his sensational victory over Johnny Goodman, gallant Omaha youngster, in the final of the national amateur golf championships at Baltimore, Ross Somerville (left), Canadian star, is shown as he received America's most prized golf trophy from H. H. Ramsay, president of the U. S. Golf Association. Somerville is the first man to take the cup from the United States in 21 years.

New Trousers Like the Old 'Peg Tops'

Reminiscent of the old "peg top" trousers are these new ones shown in this suit, recommended for the well-dressed man for Fall. And the suspenders MUST be red, say style authorities.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blocks up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

INDIANA TEAM IMPROVED ONE

Hayes' Squad Not to Be Title Contender But Will Be Tough Enough.

(Editor's note: — This is the fifth of a series on 1932 big ten conference football teams.)

By LEO FISCHER

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 21.—Indiana is still about a year away from being a serious contender for big ten football laurels, but it's safe to predict that the Hoosiers will win at least one title this season—that of being the most improved team in the league.

E. C. "Billy" Hayes, the bespectacled mentor, is slowly but surely piloting Indiana to better gridiron days.

Coach Hayes started the rehabilitation last year, but a murderous schedule was too much for the team.

This year Indiana isn't confronted with quite such an impossible card. Ohio State, Iowa, Chicago, Michigan, Illinois and Purdue are the big Ten foes, with Ohio University and Mississippi State providing the non-conference competition.

20 LETTER MEN

Coach Hayes starts the 1932 campaign with approximately 20 lettermen, in addition to a dozen or more fine prospects from the freshman ranks. Indiana has no less than 75 trying for the team.

Bernard Dickey and Fitzhugh Lyons are the regular ends, both of whom looked good last year. Edwin Anglemeier and Bill Rehm are two tackles whom any coach would welcome.

John Kekick and Bill Sylec are back to handle the guard positions, with "Piggy" Spannuth also on hand to add to his reputation as a center.

A veteran backfield consisting of Gene Opasik, quarterback; Ivan Fuqua, Stan Saluski and Otis Edmonds, halfbacks and Robert Jones, fullback, have the inside track for regular positions just now.

There's a squad which has the weight, spirit and determination to win.

CUBS CLINCH LEAGUE TITLE

Kiki Cuyler Proves Poison To Pirates In First Game of Double Bill.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, handsome speed merchant of the Chicago Cubs, is likely to be one of the heroes of the coming World Series between the Bruins and the Yankees.

Cuyler was a hero in his first post-season classic in 1925 when he gave the Pirates their first victory with a home run in the last inning, and when he won the final game of the series with a double down the right-field line. And he was the man of the hour yesterday, accounting for four of Chicago's runs as the Bruins beat the second-place Pirates 5 to 2 in the first game of a double-header, and clinched the National league pennant.

"CASEY" AT BAT

In the third inning he doubled, took third and scored Chicago's second run on a passed ball. In the seventh, with the score tied, the bases full and the count three and two, Kiki cracked a tripple that gave the Cubs the game and the penant.

Guy Bush pitched and held the Pirates to eight hits. In the night cap the Cubs didn't try very hard and got only three hits of Heine Meine. Pittsburgh winning 5 to 0.

TIGERS MUST HALT LAFEVRE, HAWKINS

If Circleville is to have a chance of defeating the Lancaster high school varsity Friday night when the teams meet under the lights in that city, Coach Herberholz must be able to develop a versatile defense to halt the line plunges of Fullback LaFevre, and the sweeping end runs and classy passes of Quarterback Paul Hawkins, colored flash, who will be remembered for his activities in the last two games the two teams have played.

LaFevre was a substitute last year, playing second fiddle to Glassford who did the greater part of his team's line smashing. Now that he is a regular he has blossomed forth into a coach's ideal, an athlete who can smash low through the line then get his bearings as soon as he is through.

HAWKINS CAPTAIN

Hawkins is one of the few colored boys to be named captain of a high school grid team nevertheless that is his honor, and a well-deserved one. He has been the star of the team for two years.

Last Friday against Lancaster St. Mary's scrappy bunch of Irish coached by Frank McDevitt, former St. Xavier athlete, the high school team scored a 12-0 victory, LaFevre going over for both touchdowns through the center of the line. The goals came early in the first and third periods.

The Tiger opponent gained 13 first downs and completed four passes. The team was also penalized 60 yards during the fray.

A profit of $400 was divided between the two teams.

SELL TICKETS HERE

E. I. Gephart, high school principal and faculty manager of athletics, announced Wednesday that he has placed tickets in the hands of members of the grid squad and has placed others on sale in several downtown stores. This contest is counted as a Circleville home game and the Tigers get a much better percentage of money from tickets sold here than they do in Lancaster. It would help the school athletic department considerably if those who plan to attend the game would get tickets here. They cost 35 cents for adults and 20 cents for students.

As yet no intimation of who the officials will be has been heard.

From present indications the two football teams will lineup something like this Friday evening:

PROBABLE LINEUPS

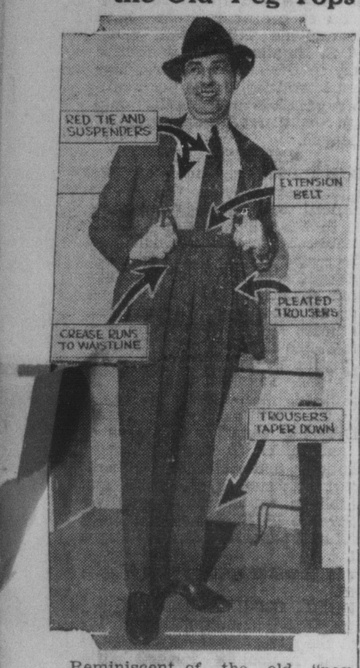
Tigers—Hegele and K. Hill, ends; Rooney and Robison, tackles; Miller and either Gordon or Cook, guards; Wallace, center; White, quarter; G. Hill, fullback; Speakman and either Davis or Steele, halfbacks.

Lancaster--Snyder and J. Beach, ends; Mills and Morris, tackles; Cann and Meier, guards; Light, center; Hawkins, quarterback; LaFevre, fullback; Welch and B. Beach, halfbacks.

Amateur Trophy Canada-Bound

Following his sensational victory over Johnny Goodman, gallant Omaha youngster, in the final of the national amateur golf championships at Baltimore, Ross Somerville (left), Canadian star, is shown as he received America's most prized golf trophy from H. H. Ramsay, president of the U. S. Golf Association. Somerville is the first man to take the cup from the United States in 21 years.

New Trousers Like the Old 'Peg Tops'



Reminiscent of the old "peg top" trousers are these new ones shown in this suit, recommended for the well-dressed man for Fall. And the suspenders MUST be red, say style authorities.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Recent a whetstone. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

CUBS CLINCH LEAGUE TITLE

Kiki Cuyler Proves Poison To Pirates In First Game of Double Bill.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, handsome speed merchant of the Chicago Cubs, is likely to be one of the heroes of the coming World Series between the Bruins and the Yankees.

Cuyler was a hero in his first post-season classic in 1925 when he gave the Pirates their first victory with a home run in the last inning, and when he won the final game of the series with a double down the right-field line. And he was the man of the hour yesterday, accounting for four of Chicago's runs as the Bruins beat the second-place Pirates 5 to 2 in the first game of a double-header, and clinched the National league pennant.

"CASEY" AT BAT

In the third inning he doubled, took third and scored Chicago's second run on a passed ball. In the seventh, with the score tied, the bases full and the count three and two, Kiki cracked a tripple that gave the Cubs the game and the penant.

Guy Bush pitched and held the Pirates to eight hits. In the night cap, the Cubs didn't try very hard and got only three hits of Heine Meine, Pittsburgh winning 5 to 0.

INDIANA TEAM IMPROVED ONE

Hayes' Squad Not to Be Title Contender But Will Be Tough Enough.

(Editor's note: — This is the fifth of a series on 1932 big ten conference football teams.)

By LEO FISCHER

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 21.—Indiana is still about a year away from being a serious contender for big ten football laurels, but it's safe to perdict that the Hoosiers will win at least one title this season—that of being the most improved team in the league.

E. C. "Billy" Hayes, the bespectacled mentor, is slowly but surely piloting Indiana to better gridiron days.

Coach Hayes started the rehabilitation last year, but a murderous schedule was too much for the team.

This year Indiana isn't confronted with quite such an impossible card. Ohio State, Iowa, Chicago, Michigan, Illinois and Purdue are the big Ten foes, with Ohio University and Mississippi State providing the non-conference competition.

20 LETTER MEN

Coach Hayes starts the 1932 campaign with approximately 20 lettermen, in addition to a dozen or more fine prospects from the freshman ranks. Indiana has no less than 75 trying for the team.

Bernard Dickey and Fitzhugh Lyons are the regular ends, both of whom looked good last year. Edwin Anglemeier and Bill Rehm are two tackles whom any coach would welcome.

John Kekick and Bill Nylec are back to handle the guard positions, with "Piggy" Spannuth also on hand to add to his reputation as a center.

A veteran backfield consisting of Gene Opasik, quarterback; Ivan Fuqua, Stan Saluski and Otis Edmonds, halfbacks and Robert Jones, fullback, have the inside track for regular positions just now.

There's a squad which has the weight, spirit and determination to win.

the mangled boy in his arms, screaming:

"He's my brother. For God's sake, help him."

Hailing a passing motorist, Judge McGoorty and his son rushed the injured boy and girl to the home of Dr. Victor S. Frankenstein where they were given first aid treatment before being taken to the Chicago hospital. A party was in progress at the doctor's home and several women guests fainted at the sight of the injured children.

Judge McGoorty, a veteran foe of gangsters, was deeply shaken by the tragedy. At a conference with police officials, held shortly after the bombing, he said he could not expel from his mind the picture of the horribly wounded boy and girl.

"If the perpetrators of this outrage will read every word of the description of that poor lad's condition," he said, "and if they have the smallest spark of conscience, they will kill themselves."

The hunt for Sammons, in connection with the bombing, recalled the public indignation at his release from prison. Sammons is now under indictment in Baltimore, Md., for a $48,000 bank robbery.

"The man is a killer," said Storms. "He has killed before and will kill again."

Famous Hangman Slashes Throat

Man Who Executed 200 Cuts Throat; Quit Job After Woman's Death.

ROCHDALE, LANCASHIRE England, Sept. 21.—Because he brooded over the 200 executions he had supervised, John Ellis, once Great Britain's most famous public hangman, was a suicide today.

He was found with his throat slashed by his own hand, a telltale razor by his side.

His most famous execution was the one that brought his public career to an abrut end.

This was the hanging of Mrs. Edith Thompson, who, with her youthful lover, Frederick Bywaters, had been condemned for the murder of her husband.

The execution, which took place on Jan. 9, 1923, shattered the hangman's nerve to such an extent he was forced to retire. The woman had to be dragged to the scaffold, screaming for mercy.

With this scene imprinted on his brain, Ellis went into seclusion, declaring:

"Never again will I hang a woman."

Professor Sees Signs Pointing to Prosperity

Madison, Wis.—Four "promising signs of recovery" from the present economic depression were cited as visible in spite of the prevailing business gloom by Prof. William H. Kiekhofer, economist at the University of Wisconsin.

They are:

The fundamentals of the economic situation are better than they were at the beginning of 1922.

The rate of decline in wholesale commodity prices is becoming slower. The banking situation at the centers is greatly improved.

The federal reserve banks have entered the open market with large scale operations.

TURN NOTED CASTLE INTO RESTAURANT

Mansion Once a Favorite With Prussian Kings.

Potsdam.—One of Prussia's finest mansions, Castle Marquardt, near Potsdam, is the latest victim of the economic crisis. In its heyday it was the favorite sojourn of Prussian kings, haunted by a ghost which historians now believe to have been a faked one. Castle Marquardt will be turned into a restaurant and week-end hotel because its present owner, a German industrialist, cannot afford its upkeep.

Castle Marquardt's history goes back to the Fifteenth century, when it was owned by the Baron Zabel von Schorin. In the following centuries it frequently changed hands.

In 1795 Castle Marquardt came into the possession of its most famous owner, Gen. von Bischofswerder, the declared favorite of King Frederick William II of Prussia. It was then that the ghost made its first appearance—a ghost which was to play a prominent role in Prussian history.

The Ghost Shows Up.

The ghostly apparition was first seen, or rather heard, in a small stone building, the so-called Blue grotto, adjoining Castle Marquardt. Hidden away among thick shrubbery in the beautiful Eighteenth century park, the interior was laid out with azure stones. The grotto received its only light from a costly crystal chandelier, which, together with the blue of the azure stones, produced mystic and beautiful color effects.

It was into this setting that Gen. von Bischofswerder used to lead the romantically inclined Prussian king to attend ghostly midnight sessions. As soon as the king entered the grotto mysterious off-stage music could be heard apparently coming from nowhere. When the ghostly tunes had subsided, the king would invariably address the ghost, asking him how best to rule the country. As if by magic, an invisible voice would answer in muffled whispers. More often than not the king would follow the apparently heaven sent counsel.

It was not long after the general's death that Castle Marquardt's pet ghost was unmasked. It was found that the Blue grotto, scene of the ghostly sessions, had double walls behind which a man of flesh and blood could comfortably hide, play a harp and answer any questions put to him. Thus, with the aid of a co-plotter, the crafty general for a while ruled the destinies of Prussia.

Bought by Frenchman.

After changing hands several times, Castle Marquardt was finally bought by Dr. Peter Louis Ravene, descendant of an old French Protestant family which fled to Germany in the days of the wars of religion and received the special protection of the Prussian kings. The present-day Ravene is a leading industrialist. Hard times are forcing him now to let the historic mansion to a British wine merchant, who is turning it into a restaurant for Berlin's week-enders.

Another German palace, that of Count Hermann Grideheym in Berlin, has closed its gates and the luxurious building in rococo style will be sold at auction. In prewar days Count Grideheym, with a yearly income of $200,000, was one of the richest men in Germany. War indemnities and the crisis ate away the Grideheym fortune.

The factory hand, Harvey Harper, 64, and his foreman, Homer Kline, 32, both lay dead in morguaries here today as a result of the crazed man's act, and Charles C. Maurer, 45, plant superintendent, and Earl Rausch, 40, a fellow employe, were recovering from flesh wounds.

RED LITERATURE IS UNDER CLOSE STUDY

Washington Examines Papers Urging Revolutions.

Washington.—Secret books and documents issued by Moscow which led to the outlawing of the Communist party in Canada and the sentencing of eight Communist leaders to five years' imprisonment in Kingston penitentiary after which they are to be deported, are being given much study at the Capital.

Copies of the documents, which set forth that the Third Communist International is now throwing emphasis on "mass revolutionary actions, strikes, and demonstrations," have come into circulation following an address delivered a few weeks ago before the Women's Patriotic conference here by Norman Sommerville of Toronto, crown counsel of Canada. The address was incorporated in the Congressional Record last month.

A Secret Brochure.

Among the mass of documentary evidence at the trial in Canada last fall, before a jury composed almost entirely of workingmen, the judgment of which was upheld by the Court of Appeals of Ontario in February, is a brochure which was sent from Moscow secretly to Communists in 57 countries, including the United States. It is under the name of B. Vassiliev, a confidential agent of the Third International, and it treats exhaustively the enlarged program formulated by the International. It is a hand guide to present-day tactics of the Communists, and written in 1930, it is Moscow's latest message in tactics.

In great detail, the document deals with the methods for the illegal work of the party, gives directions as to secret codes, invisible inks, secret hiding places, and secret messages. The new plan of operations calls upon Communist parties to change their methods and pace by "concentrating on the problems of carrying out of mass revolutionary actions of the proletariat."

Demonstrations Advocated.

"The party apparatus," it says, "in response to demands, should, in the first place be fitted for the organization of demonstrations, strikes and other mass actions. Party leaders who are not capable of organizing demonstrations and strikes should be replaced by others.

"All political campaigns should more and more have as their tasks the revolutionary mobilization of the broadest masses of the proletariat. Communist parties of all countries should make use of the discontent which exists among employed and unemployed workers, organize this discontent, carry the struggle to the stage of mass political strikes, combining them with mass demonstrations—fights for the streets.

"The party apparatus should now be systematically overhauled from the top to the bottom, especially in the course of preparation and carrying out of demonstrations and strikes.

"Last year (1929), in a number of countries including America, Germany, and France, there were a number of great strikes which the Communist parties prepared and led."

The Moscow document urged the formation of groups trained to prevent by violence any interference by the police.

WORK NEW RACKET IN INDIANA CROOKS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—There is a new way crooks have figured out of picking up some change.

A negro entered the Vonnegut Hardware Company store here, and while the clerks were all busy picked up a bucket of paint valued at $2.82 and then walked to the rear of the store.

There the darky plotter attracted the attention of one of the clerks.

"My Bell done sent me here to get a refund on this paint," the African schemer glibly claimed, holding up the bucket.

The clerk shelled out the $2.82. He found out too late that the paint had been taken from the stock by the colored visitor.

The address was incorporated in the Congressional Record last month.

A Secret Brochure.

Among the mass of documentary evidence at the trial in Canada last fall, before a jury composed almost entirely of workingmen, the judgment of which was upheld by the Court of Appeals of Ontario in February, is a brochure which was sent from Moscow secretly to Communists in 57 countries, including the United States. It is under the name of B. Vassiliev, a confidential agent of the Third International, and it treats exhaustively the enlarged program formulated by the International. It is a hand guide to present-day tactics of the Communists, and written in 1930, it is Moscow's latest message in tactics.

In great detail, the document deals with the methods for the illegal work of the party, gives directions as to secret codes, invisible inks, secret hiding places, and secret messages. The new plan of operations calls upon Communist parties to change their methods and pace by "concentrating on the problems of carrying out of mass revolutionary actions of the proletariat."

Demonstrations Advocated.

"The party apparatus," it says, "in response to demands, should, in the first place be fitted for the organization of demonstrations, strikes and other mass actions. Party leaders who are not capable of organizing demonstrations and strikes should be replaced by others.

"All political campaigns should more and more have as their tasks the revolutionary mobilization of the broadest masses of the proletariat. Communist parties of all countries should make use of the discontent which exists among employed and unemployed workers, organize this discontent, carry the struggle to the stage of mass political strikes, combining them with mass demonstrations—fights for the streets.

"The party apparatus should now be systematically overhauled from the top to the bottom, especially in the course of preparation and carrying out of demonstrations and strikes.

"Last year (1929), in a number of countries including America, Germany, and France, there were a number of great strikes which the Communist parties prepared and led."

The Moscow document urged the formation of groups trained to prevent by violence any interference by the police.

NUTMEG STATE NOTABLES

HARTFORD, Conn.— Connecticut's list of famous persons now living totals 884, according to the 1932-1933 issue of "Who's Who in America." Many new names have been added, among them notables of the opera, the screen, the stage and the bridge table.

WORK NEW RACKET INDIANA CROOKS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.— Here is a new way crooks have figured out of picking up some change.

A negro entered the Vonnegut Hardware Company store here, and while the clerks were all busy picked up a bucket of paint valued at $2.82 and then walked to the rear of the store.

There the darky plotter attracted the attention of one of the clerks.

"Mr. Bell done sent me here to get a refund on this paint," the African schemer glibly claimed, holding up the bucket.

The clerk shelled out the $2.82. He found out too late that the paint had been taken from the stock by the colored visitor.

Federal Income Gains

WASHINGTON, which was thoroughly depressed by the early results of the new federal revenue law, has taken a more hopeful viewpoint as regards a balanced budget since September 1. Up to that date the treasury was not sure that the new taxes might not defeat their own purpose.

After running behind last year during July and August, miscellaneous tax receipts jumped sharply during the first week of September. Last year receipts for that period were $6,400,000. This year the figure was $21,100,000, an increase of 240 per cent.

Federal revenue now has a 16 per cent lead over the preceding fiscal year, but this is no criterion of the effect of the new tax law on Uncle Sam's strong box. It these uncertain times revenue is as unreliable as the weather. Today's gains may be lost tomorrow.

It is easy to take the pessimistic viewpoint and look for the growing deficit to keep on growing by leaps and bounds, but it doesn't overtax one's optimism to expect further gains in revenue from now on. Though the higher postal rates and income taxes may not bring in the expected revenue due to less mail and diminishing incomes, the amusement, gasoline and check taxes are proving certain and rich sources of revenue.

Because the miscellaneous tax features of the new revenue law did not become generally effective with the beginning of the fiscal year, sufficient time has not yet elapsed to indicate the full results. The whole story will not be known until income tax returns are made next March.

Reading and Education

VERMONT was as poor in literature as she was in soil in the boyhood of Calvin Coolidge, it would seem from the list of books he remembers reading in his youth. Rural New England afforded him the New Testament, the orations of Cicero, Raymond's "Life and Public Services of Abraham Lincoln," Tyler's "Livingstone, Lost and Found," and two novels by D. P. Thompson, an obscure author. The literary course in the Vermont schools of his time consisted of some extracts in school readers and an anthology of poetry.

Conspicuously absent from his literary diet were those classics named in most lists of this sort. His fare seems to have been ever poorer than that of Lincoln, who had access to several books which have served as foundations for many learned minds.

College days probably introduced the Coolidge mind to literature as a serious subject. Then he must have become acquainted with most of the great classics and probably begun the development of his literary style, which is characterized by a pungency of expression. His study and practice of law must have helped him tremendously as did also his years in public life.

Lists of this kind have a universal appeal because they show the ambitious young person the short road to self-improvement and self-education. College training is not essential to a good education; many of the best minds of this day never saw a college campus until they received their first honorary degree.

Piscatorial Problem

FOR the federal commission of fisheries and for all state fish conservation agencies life is one long dilemma. They must conserve the fisheries as a great natural resource and at the same time do their best to promote an industry founded on their exploitation and serving a hundred million hungry people, whom certain agencies are trying to make more fish-minded, and to promote a sport which makes fish conservation possible in most states.

One way to reconcile these two conflicting objectives is to encourage in the industry and the sportsman a spirit of enlightened self-interest. That takes time, as it did in forest conservation; it was years before the bureau could bring the competing canners of Alaska into agreement on necessary conservation measure. But without such measures the industry itself may be doomed.

Because of land deficiencies of elements important to the health of man and his domestic animals, and the losses of fertility through erosion and other factors and because the seas through the ages have been absorbing these losses, it is desirable that man draw as fully as practicable on the resources of the seas, lakes and streams. "MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COVICI-FRIEDE, INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to a young man named Basil whose photograph is found in Lola's room. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confessed she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edgar, in Rochester, and was to receive her inheritance shortly. Lola's room is vacuum cleaned and the dust particles sent to Professor Luckner for analysis. Colt sends to the medical examiner a hypodermic syringe taken from Baldwin's bag and a strap for analysis, also a strand of Christine's hair found near Lola's window. The Commissioner orders Basil's picture telephotoed to M. Dupont, head of the Paris Police. It is learned that Edgar Quires received a telegram New Year's Eve and left for New York. Paper and ink identical with the death threat materials are found under Eunice's mattress. Everett's Motor Parkway alibi is shattered. Colt requests the Prefect of the Parisian Surete to investigate Lola's past. Rowland discloses that Everett wanted to marry Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. Colt believes revenge the motive for the murders.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"I WAS very glad," remarked Dougherty, "that you got that hypodermic syringe from Doctor Baldwin. I would not be surprised if he were an active part of the scheme."

"But how do you connect Baldwin with the case at all — under your jewel-thief theory?"

"He was her doctor. Doctors often find out the most secret of family affairs. She may have him in her power. Don't forget what Eunice James told us."

"And is that as far as you go?" he asked mildly.

"Oh, there are lots of details still to be cleared—we haven't got a case at the moment—but we can get it by digging!"

"There is so much that is left unexplained," Colt pointed out.

"Such as?"

"Oh, major mysteries and minor mysteries — and it will take a smarter cop than I, at this stage of the game, to tell which is major and which is minor."

"Nevertheless?"

"Mrs. Carewe says she is an Englishwoman. Yet she speaks with an almost indetectable foreign accent. Why should she lie about her origin?"

"But that isn't necessarily important, Thatcher!"

"Real clues often do not seem to be necessarily important when you find them. Like that picture of Basil on Lola's bureau. You can call it guess-work if you like, but I know that I have seen those earnest, eager features somewhere before. I cannot get that unknown boy's face out of my mind. The picture may not necessarily be important—but I believe it is. The mention of his name threw old Mrs. Carewe into a fit. Yet she said she did not know his last name. And Lola had been kissing the portrait —the scarlet mark of her lip-stick was on the glass."

"You consider these major mysteries?" asked Dougherty lugubriously.

"Time will tell. Certainly the question of Christine Quires' movements between twelve-fifteen o'clock, when she left the elevator and four o'clock, when we discovered her lying stiff, wet and dead is a major mystery. We searched those rooms thoroughly — we still do not know where she could have been concealed, although I have a theory about that. How did she get into the apartment without being seen by the three people in the place? And how did her killer get in — if none of the three persons present in the apartment is guilty?"

"Those questions, I agree, are for the moment unanswerable," rumbled Dougherty.

"Yet there are others that pique my curiosity even more," continued the Commissioner. "Why is it, for example, that the two rooms of mother and daughter offer such a crazy contrast to the rest of the apartment—and to each other?"

"Does it matter?"

"I don't know. But the contrasts remains — a peasant simplicity in the mother's room, a garish old-fashioned mid-Victorian fussiness in the daughter's—and the rest of the rooms in chaste modern simplicity. There is something behind that, Dougherty."

"Sounds metaphysical to me!"

"And without metaphysics I have seldom seen any mystery solved. There is the curious three-months' visit of this heiress at Lola's home. Why? Lola had never had any other friend visit her for so long. Your jewel theory may be right—but Christine had no jewels to amount to anything. She was heiress to a million. Did Lola intend to advise her about investments, as she did Guy Everett? Mrs. Carewe hinted at something of the kind. There is a lead that promises something. But if it does lead us anywhere, then we shall have to ask ourselves a harder question — why should Lola or anyone else want Christine to die before she received her inheritance?"

"The girl knew too much about the jewel racket," insisted Dougherty doughtily. "I'll bet you find that her brother inherits the money after her."

"But Lola has never met the brother. You see, there is some essential factor that keeps evading us all the time,—when we find that missing segment, the rest of the pieces probably will fall into place. Why was Guy Everett so nervous when we questioned him? Did he really go on a solitary auto ride last night? What method was used to kill these two women? Dougherty, old man, I could go on indefinitely reciting the riddles that still have to be answered in this perplexing case!"

"And when you get all through you'll come back to my jewel-ring idea," predicted Dougherty, gratefully accepting a second glass from the Jamaican butler.

"Perhaps," conceded Colt, "but in the meanwhile, you would not have us overlook the other possibilities within the ambit of this inquiry."

"No. But I can't keep whiffling from one opinion to another. You mean——"

"I mean that, granting at the moment we do not know how Lola Carewe and Christine Quires were slain, there are a number of people who might have killed them. We begin with Guy Everett. He had a motive of one kind or another; it seems trivial, but if he had a grudge against Lola and Christine, he might have slain them—sordid, if you like—but sheer malice has served as the motive of many murders in our records. Then there was the elevator boy. Not a very dignified or likely suspect—and yet, so far as we know, he was the last person to see Christine Quires while she was conscious. Eunice James seems to have had no motive at all—yet she might have. But Mrs. Carewe was annoyed by Christine's presence in the apartment—in senile madness, she might have killed her daughter and guest. Chung had his reasons. Never forget the fury of the Cyclops—the malicious vengeance of the ugly man who considers himself a superior being, who loves and is turned down. Perhaps, indeed, so did Vincent Rowland have a motive. Or Doctor Baldwin, unapt to do such a deed, yet with opportunities, as you very wisely suggest. Again, the brother would have a million-dollar reason for wishing to get rid of his sister—and God knows he would not be the first brother to kill his sister with tricky deceitfulness and for the same reason. I could go on, widening the list, but for our purposes the ones I have named are sufficient."

"I believe there was more than one murderer. There were at least two. Whatever happened, it was too complicated for just one person to get away with it," declared Dougherty fervently.

"Bravo, Dougherty," cried Thatcher Colt. "Your reasoning sounds accurate. But what if the poor girls were the accomplices in their own execution?"

"I hadn't thought of that," confessed Dougherty. "Sounds metaphysical again. How could they be?"

"I don't know—but there are several theories that occur to me."

"The very look of the corpse," declared Dougherty, "suggested poison to me. Have you formed any notion as to what kind of poison might have been used?"

"Not in the least. But Multooler has promised the earliest possible word. In any case, I still feel we are dealing with a highly superior criminal intelligence. Even as far as we have gone, we can see that the plan was outrageously well worked out."

Colt lit his pipe.

"If the poison," he resumed, "had reached the girl on the tip of an arrow blown from a blow-gun, a sabarcand, or something of that sort, our job would have been much simpler. But Multooler says there is not an open wound on her body. Our guilty one has already evinced a truly infernal cunning, thinking to commit the perfect crime, no doubt. Of course we three in this room know there is no such thing. There is always a flaw in these perfectly planned atrocities. There is a flaw somewhere in this pent-house business tonight—only we haven't found it yet."

The telephone bell rang. From my extension, I heard the brittle voice of the Assistant Medical Examiner greeting Thatcher Colt:

"Hello, Mr. Colt! Say, this case gets funnier every time you turn around. I don't care how mysterious it sounds, it begins to look like those two girls died natural deaths. At least, I can't find any poison in them."

I heard the sharp intake of Colt's breath. It was a body blow to his plans. What hope was there of tracing a murder, if the police were unable to prove the girls had died unnaturally?

"How thorough was your examination?" asked the Commissioner.

"I had six assistants working with me—we went through everything including the viscera."

"You found no symptoms at all?" demanded Colt, amazed.

"Well, I found a very queer condition in both cadavers, but I don't know what it means. There was a congestion of the muscles around the two hearts, you see—sufficient to cause death. But the valves of the hearts showed every indication that they had been functioning properly all their lives.

"Just one minute," interrupted Colt. "Are you certain of that last statement?"

"Of course, Mr. Colt!"

Economic Ills Present a National Health Problem

Increase in Infectious and Deficiency Diseases Proves the Necessity of Avoiding Worry and Giving Careful Attention to Diet, Sleep and Exercise

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I CAN think of nothing more timely than to warn you of the present need for conservation of strength and health. Reports from many hospitals and welfare agencies indicate an increase of illness throughout the land.

Dr. Copeland

Though the death rate for the past two years has been low, there has been a definite increase in the infectious and deficiency diseases, showing that the need of proper attention to diet and health is of national importance and must not be neglected.

In times of economic stress it is more necessary than ever to cultivate healthful habits. Worry is often worse than disease. Worry interferes with appetite and normal digestion. Loss of appetite, gastric distress, constipation, loss of weight, headache, disturbed sleep and other conditions too numerous to mention can be traced to worry.

If you have problems, remember that ill health will make your load heavier. Above all, do not economize by cutting down on your food and the necessary rest and recreation. Eat freely of fruits and vegetables. Meals should be regular and ample time should be set aside for each meal.

Drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily. Proper daily elimination is necessary. Alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee and condiments should be taken in extreme moderation and drugs should be avoided.

A minimum of eight hours of sleep is necessary for the average individual. Remember that with lack of sleep it is necessary to expend twice as much energy to accomplish the same amount of work. If you have any difficulty in sleeping, take a brisk walk before bedtime. A warm bath and a warm glass of milk taken before retiring will be beneficial.

Of course, if you have an ailment it is necessary to receive the proper medical attention. If you cannot afford a private physician, do not neglect yourself but apply at a hospital clinic or board of health station, where you will receive medical treatment and advice. If you are physically fit, guard and respect your health, for it will give you greater resistance against attacks of worry and disease.

Get out in the open air as much as possible. Hold your chin up, your stomach in and your spine erect. Walk and act as if living were a joy. I have no doubt that this attitude will aid each of us to deal successfully with the present distressing but temporary problems.

Answers to Health Queries

P. P. Q.—What do you advise for constipation?

A.—Correct your diet and avoid poor elimination. For further particulars send self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

O. B. Q.—I am 18, 4 ft. 10 inches tall, what should I weigh?

A.—You should weigh about 108 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

H. B. Q.—Would dark glasses relieve eye-strain?

A.—Possibly. But it would be wise to have your eyes examined to determine whether or not you need glasses.

Mrs. B. Q.—Is deep breathing good for one who has a spot on the lung?

A.—Yes; should prove helful.

W. J. J. Q.—What causes itching of the legs?

A.—This may be due to pruritis, caused by constipation or auto-intoxication. Certain diseases of the nervous system may also cause this condition. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question

Miss G. A. Q.—What do you advise for dry brittle nails?

A.—Soak them in warm olive oil. This should prove helpful.

A. J. Q—Can a large nose be reduced?

A.—Consult a plastic surgeon.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Using newspapers to study for a screen role is the expedient by which Lionel Barrymore prepared for his part as the United States senator in "The Washington Masquerade," new drama of national politics showing at the Cliftona Theatre today and tomorrow.

"I secured every newspaper item I could find about the Senate and all speeches and details of the tax legislation," explained Barrymore in a recent interview. "By studying them I found out what sort of a character a senator in action would be.

"I don't know any senators and never was in politics, but the newspaper and wire service items gave me a better idea than I could have obtained by actually being on the floor of the Senate."

Karen Morley has the chief feminine role in "The Washington Masquerade," and the cast also includes Diane Sinclair and Nils Asther.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1932

Astrologers read this as a favorable day in which domestic affairs run along smoothly. Harmony prevails today; people will be sunny and genial and take things as they are, it is prophesied.

The position of the planets conduce to a desire for company, ease and comfort. Sympathetic understanding, courtesy and cheer will predominate.

This should be a fortunate and pleasant day for card parties and club meetings; amusement parks and concerts will afford much pleasure and the newspapers are likely to devote considerable space to social functions and affairs of charity.

It is a delightful day for lake trips and rowing in the parks; interesting programs are expected on the radio. Children's wards in hospitals and charitable institutions should have many visitors and the young folks should enjoy the day, especially during the afternoon and evening hours.

Artists are likely to have their work on display today and the art galleries should draw many visitors. Dressmakers should turn out satisfactory work: this may be an active day for the fruit and ice cream stores also movies, it is foretold.

Department stores should have their advertisements in today's papers, for children's wear dresses and fancy goods. The vibrations tend toward excellent window displays designed to attract the public.

Those born between the last week in February, May and November should be careful of new acquaintances; their tendency to form ideals causes them many disappointments.

Children born on this day have a great deal of tact and diplomacy; they are adapted for literary work and books and are fond of reading.

Edmund Gosse, eminent literary critic, was born on this day. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Girolamo Savonrola, Italian monk and martyr; Herbert George Wells, English novelist and historian.

THE CAUSE AND ITS EFFECT

"Big business with its high prices and closing out all little business has put out of employment millions of men; they have demolished their own market. Little business is the market for what big business produces. They have killed the business life of America. If they cntinue the cause an awful crash will soon come. Tax payers failing to pay taxes are increasing by thousands. The time is near when county courts, county institutions, city governments, city institutions, state governments and state institutions will have to close. The states will own all of the prnperay and there will be no tax money to keep up these institutions which will add millions more to the unemployed.

"Before some of the leaders of our nation try to advise other natins how to start business and prosper, it would be more wise to have leaders of other nations to come and see the fine prosperous condition of America."

RARE PLANT BLOOMS

PARIS— The Victoria Regia, one of the rarest tropical plants ever transplanted to a northern climate, is now blooming again at the Paris Museum of Natural History for the first time in forty year. Enormous white flowers have appeared among the large leaves and are expected to continue blooming for several days before going to sleep again for perhaps half a century.

Federal Income Gains

WASHINGTON, which was thoroughly depressed by the early results of the new federal revenue law, has taken a more hopeful viewpoint as regards a balanced budget since September 1. Up to that date the treasury was not sure that the new taxes might not defeat their own purpose.

After running behind last year during July and August, miscellaneous tax receipts jumped sharply during the first week of September. Last year receipts for that period were $6,400,000. This year the figure was $21,100,000, an increase of 240 per cent.

Federal revenue now has a 16 per cent lead over the preceding fiscal year, but this is no criterion of the effect of the new tax law on Uncle Sam's strong box. If these uncertain times revenue is as unreliable as the weather. Today's gains may be lost tomorrow.

It is easy to take the pessimistic viewpoint and look for the growing deficit to keep on growing by leaps and bounds, but it doesn't overtax one's optimism to expect further gains in revenue from now on. Though the higher postal rates and income taxes may not bring in the expected revenue due to less mail and diminishing incomes, the amusement, gasoline and check taxes are proving certain and rich sources of revenue.

Because the miscellaneous tax features of the new revenue law did not become generally effective with the beginning of the fiscal year, sufficient time has not yet elapsed to indicate the full results. The whole story will not be known until income tax returns are made next March.

Reading and Education

VERMONT was as poor in literature as she was in soil in the boyhood of Calvin Coolidge, it would seem from the list of books he remembers reading in his youth. Rural New England afforded him the New Testament, the orations of Cicero, Raymond's "Life and Public Services of Abraham Lincoln," Tyler's "Livingstone, Lost and Found," and two novels by D. P. Thompson, an obscure author. The literary course in the Vermont schools of his time consisted of some extracts in school readers and an anthology of poetry.

Conspicuously absent from his literary diet were those classics named in most lists of this sort. His fare seems to have been ever poorer than that of Lincoln, who had access to several books which have served as foundations for many learned minds.

College days probably introduced the Coolidge mind to literature as a serious subject. Then he must have become acquainted with most of the great classics and probably begun the development of his literary style, which is characterized by a pungency of expression. His study and practice of law must have helped him tremendously as did also his years in public life.

Lists of this kind have a universal appeal because they show the ambitious young person the short road to self-improvement and self-education. College training is not essential to a good education; many of the best minds of this day never saw a college campus until they received their first honorary degree.

Piscatorial Problem

FOR the federal commission of fisheries and for all state fish conservation agencies life is one long dilemma. They must conserve the fisheries as a great natural resource and at the same time do their best to promote an industry founded on their exploitation and serving a hundred million hungry people, whom certain agencies are trying to make more fish-minded, and to promote a sport which makes fish conservation possible in most states.

One way to reconcile these two conflicting objectives is to encourage in the industry and the sportsman a spirit of enlightened self-interest. That takes time, as it did in forest conservation; it was years before the bureau could bring the competing canners of Alaska into agreement on necessary conservation measures. But without such measures the industry itself may be doomed.

Because of land deficiencies of elements important to the health of man and his domestic animals, and the losses of fertility through erosion and other factors and because the seas through the ages have been absorbing these losses, it is desirable that man draw as fully as practicable on the resources of the seas, lakes and streams. "MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COVICI-FRIEDE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to a young man named Basil whose photograph is found in Lola's room. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confessed she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edgar, in Rochester, and was to receive her inheritance shortly. Lola's room is vacuum cleaned and the dust particles sent to Professor Luckner for analysis. Colt sends to the medical examiner a hypodermic syringe taken from Baldwin's bag and a strap for analysis, also a strand of Christine's hair found near Lola's window. The Commissioner orders Basil's picture telephotoed to M. Duponf, head of the Paris Police. It is learned that Edgar Quires received a telegram New Year's Eve and left for New York. Paper and ink identical with the death threat materials are found under Eunice's mattress. Everett's Motor Parkway alibi is shattered. Colt requests the Prefect of the Parisian Surete to investigate Lola's past. Rowland discloses that Everett wanted to marry Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. Colt believes revenge the motive for the murders.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"I WAS very glad," remarked Dougherty, "that you got that hypodermic syringe from Doctor Baldwin. I would not be surprised if he were an active part of the scheme."

"But how do you connect Baldwin with the case at all — under your jewel-thief theory?"

"He was her doctor. Doctors often find out the most secret of family affairs. She may have him in her power. Don't forget what Eunice James told us."

"And is that as far as you go?" he asked mildly.

"Oh, there are lots of details still to be cleared—we haven't got a case at the moment—but we can get it by digging!"

"There is so much that is left unexplained," Colt pointed out.

"Such as?"

"Oh, major mysteries and minor mysteries — and it will take a smarter cop than I, at this stage of the game, to tell which is major and which is minor."

"Nevertheless?"

"Mrs. Carewe says she is an Englishwoman. Yet she speaks with an almost indetectable foreign accent. Why should she lie about her origin?"

"But that isn't necessarily important, Thatcher!"

"Real clues often do not seem to be necessarily important when you find them. Like that picture of Basil on Lola's bureau. You can call it guess-work if you like, but I know that I have seen those earnest, eager features somewhere before. I cannot get that unknown boy's face out of my mind. The picture may not necessarily be important—but I believe it is. The mention of his name threw old Mrs. Carewe into a fit. Yet she said she did not know his last name. And Lola had been kissing the portrait —the scarlet mark of her lip-stick was on the glass."

"You consider these major mysteries?" asked Dougherty lugubriously.

"Time will tell. Certainly the question of Christine Quires' movements between twelve-fifteen o'clock, when she left the elevator and four o'clock, when we discovered her lying stiff, wet and dead is a major mystery. We searched those rooms thoroughly — we still do not know where she could have been concealed, although I have a theory about that. How did she get into the apartment without being seen by the three people in the place? And how did her killer get in — if none of the three persons present in the apartment is guilty?"

"Those questions, I agree, are for the moment unanswerable," rumbled Dougherty.

"Yet there are others that pique my curiosity even more," continued the Commissioner. "Why is it, for example, that the two rooms of mother and daughter offer such a crazy contrast to the rest of the apartment—and to each other?"

"Does it matter?"

"I don't know. But the contrasts remains — a peasant simplicity in the mother's room, a garish old-fashioned mid-Victorian fussiness in the daughter's—and the rest of the rooms in chaste modern simplicity. There is something behind that, Dougherty."

"Sounds metaphysical to me!"

"And without metaphysics I have seldom seen any mystery solved. There is the curious three-months' visit of this heiress at Lola's home. Why? Lola had never had any other friend visit her for so long. Your jewel theory may be right—but Christine had no jewels to amount to anything. She was heiress to a million. Did Lola intend to advise her about investments, as she did Guy Everett? Mrs. Carewe hinted at something of the kind. There is a lead that promises something. But if it does lead us anywhere, then we shall have to ask ourselves a harder question — why should Lola or anyone else want Christine to die before she received her inheritance?"

"The girl knew too much about the jewel racket," insisted Dougherty doughtily. "I'll bet you find that her brother inherits the money after her."

"But Lola has never met the brother. You see, there is some essential factor that keeps evading us all the time,—when we find that missing segment, the rest of the pieces probably will fall into place. Why was Guy Everett so nervous when we questioned him? Did he really go on a solitary auto ride last night? What method was used to kill these two women? Dougherty, old man, I could go on indefinitely reciting the riddles that still have to be answered in this perplexing case!"

"And when you get all through you'll come back to my jewel-ring idea," predicted Dougherty, gratefully accepting a second glass from the Jamaican butler.

"Perhaps," conceded Colt, "but in the meanwhile, you would not have us overlook the other possibilities within the ambit of this inquiry."

"No. But I can't keep whiffling from one opinion to another. You mean——"

"I mean that, granting at the moment we do not know how Lola Carewe and Christine Quires were slain, there are a number of people who might have killed them. We begin with Guy Everett. He had a motive of one kind or another; it seems trivial, but if he had a grudge against Lola and Christine, he might have slain them—sordid, if you like—but sheer malice has served as the motive of many murders in our records. Then there was the elevator boy. Not a very dignified or likely suspect—and yet, so far as we know, he was the last person to see Christine Quires while she was conscious. Eunice James seems to have had no motive at all—yet she might have. But Mrs. Carewe was annoyed by Christine's presence in the apartment—in senile madness, she might have killed her daughter and guest. Chung had his reasons. Never forget the fury of the Cyclops—the malicious vengeance of the ugly man who considers himself a superior being, who loves and is turned down. Perhaps, indeed, so did Vincent Rowland have a motive. Or Doctor Baldwin, unapt to do such a deed, yet with opportunities, as you very wisely suggest. Again, the brother would have a million-dollar reason for wishing to get rid of his sister—and God knows he would not be the first brother to kill his sister with tricky deceitfulness and for the same reason. I could go on, widening the list, but for our purposes the ones I have named are sufficient."

"I believe there was more than one murderer. There were at least two. Whatever happened, it was too complicated for just one person to get away with it," declared Dougherty fervently.

"Bravo, Dougherty," cried Thatcher Colt. "Your reasoning sounds accurate. But what if the poor girls were the accomplices in their own execution?"

"I hadn't thought of that," confessed Dougherty. "Sounds metaphysical again. How could they be?"

"I don't know—but there are several theories that occur to me."

"The very look of the corpse," declared Dougherty, "suggested poison to me. Have you formed any notion as to what kind of poison might have been used?"

"Not in the least. But Multooler has promised the earliest possible word. In any case, I still feel we are dealing with a highly superior criminal intelligence. Even as far as we have gone, we can see that the plan was outrageously well worked out."

Colt lit his pipe.

"If the poison," he resumed, "had reached the girl on the tip of an arrow blown from a blow-gun, a sabarcand, or something of that sort, our job would have been much simpler. But Multooler says there is not an open wound on her body. Our guilty one has already evinced a truly infernal cunning, thinking to commit the perfect crime, no doubt. Of course we three in this room know there is no such thing. There is always a flaw in these perfectly planned atrocities. There is a flaw somewhere in this pent-house business tonight—only we haven't found it yet."

The telephone bell rang. From my extension, I heard the brittle voice of the Assistant Medical Examiner greeting Thatcher Colt:

"Hello, Mr. Colt! Say, this case gets funnier every time you turn around. I don't care how mysterious it sounds, it begins to look like those two girls died natural deaths. At least, I can't find any poison in them."

I heard the sharp intake of Colt's breath. It was a body blow to his plans. What hope was there of tracing a murder, if the police were unable to prove the girls had died unnaturally?

"How thorough was your examination?" asked the Commissioner.

"I had six assistants working with me—we went through everything including the viscera."

"You found no symptoms at all?" demanded Colt, amazed.

"Well, I found a very queer condition in both cadavers, but I don't know what it means. There was a congestion of the muscles around the two hearts, you see—sufficient to cause death. But the valves of the hearts showed every indication that they had been functioning properly all their lives.

"Just one minute," interrupted Colt. "Are you certain of that last statement?"

"Of course, Mr. Colt!"

Economic Ills Present a National Health Problem

Increase in Infectious and Deficiency Diseases Proves the Necessity of Avoiding Worry and Giving Careful Attention to Diet, Sleep and Exercise

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I CAN think of nothing more timely than to warn you of the present need for conservation of strength and health. Reports from many hospitals and welfare agencies indicate an increase of illness throughout the land.

Dr. Copeland

Though the death rate for the past two years has been low, there has been a definite increase in the infectious and deficiency diseases, showing that the need of proper attention to diet and health is of national importance and must not be neglected.

In times of economic stress it is more necessary than ever to cultivate healthful habits. Worry is often worse than disease. Worry interferes with appetite and normal digestion. Loss of appetite, gastric distress, constipation, loss of weight, headache, disturbed sleep and other conditions too numerous to mention can be traced to worry.

If you have problems, remember that ill health will make your load heavier. Above all, do not economize by cutting down on your food and the necessary rest and recreation. Eat freely of fruits and vegetables. Meals should be regular and ample time should be set aside for each meal.

Drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily. Proper daily elimination is necessary. Alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee and condiments should be taken in extreme moderation and drugs should be avoided.

A minimum of eight hours of sleep is necessary for the average individual. Remember that with lack of sleep it is necessary to expend twice as much energy to accomplish the same amount of work. If you have any difficulty in sleeping, take a brisk walk before bedtime. A warm bath and a warm glass of milk taken before retiring will be beneficial.

Of course, if you have an ailment it is necessary to receive the proper medical attention. If you cannot afford a private physician, do not neglect yourself but apply at a hospital clinic or board of health station, where you will receive medical treatment and advice. If you are physically fit, guard and respect your health, for it will give you greater resistance against attacks of worry and disease.

Get out in the open air as much as possible. Hold your chin up, your stomach in and your spine erect. Walk and act as if living were a joy. I have no doubt that this attitude will aid each of us to deal successfully with the present distressing but temporary problems.

Answers to Health Queries

F. P. Q.—What do you advise for constipation?

A.—Correct your diet and avoid poor elimination. For further particulars send self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

O. B. Q.—I am 18, 4 ft. 10 inches tall, what should I weigh?

A.—You should weigh about 108 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

H. B. Q.—Would dark glasses relieve eye-strain?

A.—Possibly. But it would be wise to have your eyes examined to determine whether or not you need glasses.

Mrs. B. Q.—Is deep breathing good for one who has a spot on the lung?

A.—Yes; should prove helful.

W. J. J. Q.—What causes itching of the legs?

A.—This may be due to pruritis, caused by constipation or auto-intoxication. Certain diseases of the nervous system may also cause this condition. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Miss G. A. Q.—What do you advise for dry brittle nails?

A.—Soak them in warm olive oil. This should prove helpful.

A. J. Q.—Can a large nose be reduced?

A.—Consult a plastic surgeon.

"SURE THING" SUICIDE

COLFAX, Ill.—U. S. Lyons 68, a farmer, wanted to make "sure thing" of his suicide. He fastened a pipe to the exhaust of his auto truck in his garage, shut the garage doors, lay down at the rear of the pipe exhaust, and then applied a rag soaked in chloroform to his nose while he left the truck's motor running. He died.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

THE CAUSE AND ITS EFFECT

"Big business with its high prices and closing out all little business has put out of employment millions of men; they have demolished their own market. Little business is the market for what big business produces. They have killed the business life of America. If they cntinue the cause an awful crash will soon come. Tax payers failing to pay taxes are increasing by thousands. The time is near when county courts, county institutions, city governments, city institutions, state governments and state institutions will have to close. The states will own all of the prnperay and there will be no tax money to keep up these institutions which will add millions more to the unemployed.

"Before some of the leaders of our nation try to advise other natins how to start business and prosper, it would be more wise to have leaders of other nations to come and see the fine prosperous condition of America."

Joseph Eagleston, Darby.

RARE PLANT BLOOMS

PARIS— The Victoria Regia, one of the rarest tropical plants ever transplanted to a northern climate, is now blooming again at the Paris Museum of Natural History for the first time in forty year. Enormous white flowers have appeared among the large leaves and are expected to continue blooming for several days before going to sleep again for perhaps half a century.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Using newspapers to study for a screen role is the expedient by which Lionel Barrymore prepared for his part as the United States senator in "The Washington Masquerade," new drama of national politics showing at the Cliftona Theatre today and tomorrow.

"I secured every newspaper item I could find about the Senate and all speeches and details of the tax legislation," explained Barrymore in a recent interview. "By studying them I found out what sort of a character a senator in action would be.

"I don't know any senators and never was in politics, but the newspaper and wire service items gave me a better idea than I could have obtained by actually being on the floor of the Senate."

Karen Morley has the chief feminine role in "The Washington Masquerade," and the cast also includes Diane Sinclair and Nils Asther.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1932

Astrologers read this as a favorable day in which domestic affairs run along smoothly. Harmony prevails today; people will be sunny and genial and take things as they are, it is prophesied.

The position of the planets conduce to a desire for company, ease and comfort. Sympathetic understanding, courtesy and cheer will predominate.

This should be a fortunate and pleasant day for card parties and club meetings; amusement parks and concerts will afford much pleasure and the newspapers are likely to devote considerable space to social functions and affairs of charity.

It is a delightful day for lake trips and rowing in the parks; interesting programs are expected on the radio. Children's wards in hospitals and charitable institutions should have many visitors and the young folks should enjoy the day, especially during the afternoon and evening hours.

Artists are likely to have their work on display today and the art galleries should draw many visitors. Dressmakers should turn out satisfactory work; this may be an active day for the fruit and ice cream stores also movies, it is forctold.

Department stores should have their advertisements in today's papers, for children's wear dresses and fancy goods. The vibrations tend toward excellent window displays designed to attract the public.

Those born between the last week in February, May and November should be careful of new acquaintances; their tendency to form ideals causes them many disappointments.

Children born on this day have a great deal of tact and diplomacy; they are adapted for literary work and books and are fond of reading.

Edmund Gosse, eminent literary critic, was born on this day. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Girolamo Savonrola, Italian monk and martyr; Herbert George Wells, English novelist and historian.

That if the men who write under this heading didn't stop to think you wouldn't stop to read it.

If the man who writes an advertisement doesn't put his mind to it he won't get any attention.

If you don't take time to think what the public want in your line and study their needs someone else will serve them and then they won't get the chance.

Other people are something like yourself and won't take what they don't want.

There are a great many things in our modern world and you've got to advertise to get the public attention and you must make your message as interesting or more interesting than the other messages which are floating through the air and spread out on printed pages.

YOU'VE GOT TO LOOK ALIVE AND BE ALIVE TO STAY ALIVE!

SCHOOL DAYS — By DWIG

Lynch, Colwell, Joseph Work

If you can make good butter or have good honey or fine eggs call Joseph Lynch, chairman of this section of the Pumpkin Show.

If you know how to make jellies, or can fruits or vegetables, the Pumpkin Show society will pay money in prizes for the best. Harley Colwell is in charge of this department.

The little ones in the Children's Home always look forward to the candies they receive from the Pumpkin Show. Why not send a plate of candy to the Pumpkin Show—you might win a prize—then enjoy knowing that some boy or girl is getting a kick out of the candy. Henry Joseph is in charge of this display.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I. writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one of 19 and the other 18. My friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

Phyllis Crawford of Danville, Ill., as she appeared before the main building of Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington, Ill., and offered to pay her tuition by working on the university's farms with her plow and team. The school has been accepting farm produce in payment of tuition fees, but Miss Crawford, having no produce, offered to work out her fee instead. She is seen talking terms with Manager Crabtree of the University.

Trees Play An Important Part In History of World; Elm Is Leader

By MRS. HOWARD JONES,
President Ohio History Day Association

If the groves were God's first temples then many a tree was a primitive shrine.

Many an important historical event took place under a tree. Elijah sat down under a juniper tree and prayed God to take away his life. The Magda Charter of England was hidden in an old oak tree.

Elms seem to have been particularly favored in the history of the United States. George Washington took command of the Continental Army July 3rd. 1775, under an elm tree at Cambridge. The tree under which William Penn made his famous treaty with the Indians was a widespreading elm near the City of Philadelphia.

In Pickaway-co stands a huge elm tree which has for ages stretched its arms to heaven. For centuries the birds have nested in its branches; animals have sought its shelter, and the plumed and painted Indian quenched his thirst at the spring which bubbled at its roots.

What tales this tree could tell were it gifted with speech. One story would be of surpassing interest—the story of the meeting between Lord Dunmore's men and the exasperated Indians to talk over terms of peace.

The early settlers called the tree "Logan Elm" in honor of the Mingo Chief "Logan" who was known as "Friend of the White Man."

Major John Boggs was the first pioneer to own the land upon which the elm stands, and he and his descendants protected it during their lives. Storms have battered and maimed the old tree but it still stands as it stood when Columbus, with his motley crew, touched the shores of San Salvador. In 1912 the Pickaway-co Historical Society formed a plan to save the tree, which was beginning to show the ravages of age, bought a few acres of land around the tree and donated it to the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society for a State Park.

For twenty years exercises have been held under the tree once a year, and people in increasing numbers have visited the shrine to listen to talks by noted men and pay homage to the old monarch of the forest. The Pickaway Historical Society merged into The Ohio History Day Association who are carrying on the work.

Federal Income Gains

WASHINGTON, which was thoroughly depressed by the early results of the new federal revenue law, has taken a more hopeful viewpoint as regards a balanced budget since September 1. Up to that date the treasury was not sure that the new taxes might not defeat their own purpose.

After running behind last year during July and August, miscellaneous tax receipts jumped sharply during the first week of September. Last year receipts for that period were $6,400,000. This year the figure was $21,100,000, an increase of 240 per cent.

Federal revenue now has a 16 per cent lead over the preceding fiscal year, but this is no criterion of the effect of the new tax law on Uncle Sam's strong box. It these uncertain times revenue is as unreliable as the weather. Today's gains may be lost tomorrow.

It is easy to take the pessimistic viewpoint and look for the growing deficit to keep on growing by leaps and bounds, but it doesn't overtax one's optimism to expect further gains in revenue from now on. Though the higher postal rates and income taxes may not bring in the expected revenue due to less mail and diminishing incomes, the amusement, gasoline and check taxes are proving certain and rich sources of revenue.

Because the miscellaneous tax features of the new revenue law did not become generally effective with the beginning of the fiscal year, sufficient time has not yet elapsed to indicate the full results. The whole story will not be known until income tax returns are made next March.

Reading and Education

VERMONT was as poor in literature as she was in soil in the boyhood of Calvin Coolidge, it would seem from the list of books he remembers reading in his youth. Rural New England afforded him the New Testament, the orations of Cicero, Raymond's "Life and Public Services of Abraham Lincoln," Tyler's "Livingstone, Lost and Found," and two novels by D. P. Thompson, an obscure author. The literary course in the Vermont schools of his time consisted of some extracts in school readers and an anthology of poetry.

Conspicuously absent from his literary diet were those classics named in most lists of this sort. His fare seems to have been ever poorer than that of Lincoln, who had access to several books which have served as foundations for many learned minds.

College days probably introduced the Coolidge mind to literature as a serious subject. Then he must have become acquainted with most of the great classics and probably begun the development of his literary style, which is characterized by a pungency of expression. His study and practice of law must have helped him tremendously as did also his years in public life.

Lists of this kind have a universal appeal because they show the ambitious young person the short road to self-improvement and self-education. College training is not essential to a good education; many of the best minds of this day never saw a college campus until they received their first honorary degree.

Piscatorial Problem

FOR the federal commission of fisheries and for all state fish conservation agencies life is one long dilemma. They must conserve the fisheries as a great natural resource and at the same time do their best to promote an industry founded on their exploitation and serving a hundred million hungry people, whom certain agencies are trying to make more fish-minded, and to promote a sport which makes fish conservation possible in most states.

One way to reconcile these two conflicting objectives is to encourage in the industry and the sportsman a spirit of enlightened self-interest. That takes time, as it did in forest conservation; it was years before the bureau could bring the competing canners of Alaska into agreement on necessary conservation measure. But without such measures the industry itself may be doomed.

Because of land deficiencies of elements important to the health of man and his domestic animals, and the losses of fertility through erosion and other factors and because the seas through the ages have been absorbing these losses, it is desirable that man draw as fully as practicable on the resources of the seas, lakes and streams. "MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COVICI-FRIEDE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to a young man named Basil whose photograph is found in Lola's room. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confessed she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edgar, in Rochester, and was to receive her inheritance shortly. Lola's room is vacuum cleaned and the dust particles sent to Professor Luckner for analysis. Colt sends to the medical examiner a hypodermic syringe taken from Baldwin's bag and a strap for analysis, also a strand of Christine's hair found near Lola's window. The Commissioner orders Basil's picture telephotoed to M. Dupont, head of the Paris Police. It is learned that Edgar Quires received a telegram New Year's Eve and left for New York. Paper and ink identical with the death threat materials are found under Eunice's mattress. Everett's Motor Parkway alibi is shattered. Colt requests the Prefect of the Parisian Surete to investigate Lola's past. Rowland discloses that Everett wanted to marry Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. Colt believes revenge the motive for the murders.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"I WAS very glad," remarked Dougherty, "that you got that hypodermic syringe from Doctor Baldwin. I would not be surprised if he were an active part of the scheme."

"But how do you connect Baldwin with the case at all — under your jewel-thief theory?"

"He was her doctor. Doctors often find out the most secret of family affairs. She may have him in her power. Don't forget what Eunice James told us."

"And is that as far as you go?" he asked mildly.

"Oh, there are lots of details still to be cleared—we haven't got a case at the moment—but we can get it by digging!"

"There is so much that is left unexplained," Colt pointed out.

"Such as?"

"Oh, major mysteries and minor mysteries — and it will take a smarter cop than I, at this stage of the game, to tell which is major and which is minor."

"Nevertheless?"

"Mrs. Carewe says she is an Englishwoman. Yet she speaks with an almost indetectable foreign accent. Why should she lie about her origin?"

"But that isn't necessarily important, Thatcher!"

"Real clues often do not seem to be necessarily important when you find them. Like that picture of Basil on Lola's bureau. You can call it guess-work if you like, but I know that I have seen those earnest, eager features somewhere before. I cannot get that unknown boy's face out of my mind. The picture may not necessarily be important—but I believe it is. The mention of his name threw old Mrs. Carewe into a fit. Yet she said she did not know his last name. And Lola had been kissing the portrait —the scarlet mark of her lip-stick was on the glass."

"You consider these major mysteries?" asked Dougherty lugubriously.

"Time will tell. Certainly the question of Christine Quires' movements between twelve-fifteen o'clock, when she left the elevator and four o'clock, when we discovered her lying stiff, wet and dead is a major mystery. We searched those rooms thoroughly — we still do not know where she could have been concealed, although I have a theory about that. How did she get into the apartment without being seen by the three people in the place? And how did her killer get in — if none of the three persons present in the apartment is guilty?"

"Those questions, I agree, are for the moment unanswerable," rumbled Dougherty.

"Yet there are others that pique my curiosity even more," continued the Commissioner. "Why is it, for example, that the two rooms of mother and daughter offer such a crazy contrast to the rest of the apartment—and to each other?"

"Does it matter?"

"I don't know. But the contrasts remains — a peasant simplicity in the mother's room, a garish old-fashioned mid-Victorian fussiness in the daughter's—and the rest of the rooms in chaste modern simplicity. There is something behind that, Dougherty."

"Sounds metaphysical to me!"

"And without metaphysics I have seldom seen any mystery solved. There is the curious three-months' visit of this heiress at Lola's home. Why? Lola had never had any other friend visit her for so long. Your jewel theory may be right—but Christine had no jewels to amount to anything. She was heiress to a million. Did Lola intend to advise her about investments, as she did Guy Everett? Mrs. Carewe hinted at something of the kind. There is a lead that promises something. But if it does lead us anywhere, then we shall have to ask ourselves a harder question — why should Lola or anyone else want Christine to die before she received her inheritance?"

"The girl knew too much about the jewel racket," insisted Dougherty doughtily. "I'll bet you find that her brother inherits the money after her."

"But Lola has never met the brother. You see, there is some essential factor that keeps evading us all the time,—when we find that missing segment, the rest of the pieces probably will fall into place. Why was Guy Everett so nervous when we questioned him? Did he really go on a solitary auto ride last night? What method was used to kill these two women? Dougherty, old man, I could go on indefinitely reciting the riddles that still have to be answered in this perplexing case!"

"And when you get all through you'll come back to my jewel-ring idea," predicted Dougherty, gratefully accepting a second glass from the Jamaican butler.

"Perhaps," conceded Colt, "but in the meanwhile, you would not have us overlook the other possibilities within the ambit of this inquiry."

"No. But I can't keep whiffling from one opinion to another. You mean——"

"I mean that, granting at the moment we do not know how Lola Carewe and Christine Quires were slain, there are a number of people who might have killed them. We begin with Guy Everett. He had a motive of one kind or another; it seems trivial, but if he had a grudge against Lola and Christine, he might have slain them—sordid, if you like—but sheer malice has served as the motive of many murders in our records. Then there was the elevator boy. Not a very dignified or likely suspect—and yet, so far as we know, he was the last person to see Christine Quires while she was conscious. Eunice James seems to have had no motive at all—yet she might have. But Mrs. Carewe was annoyed by Christine's presence in the apartment—in senile madness, she might have killed her daughter and guest. Chung had his reasons. Never forget the fury of the Cyclops—the malicious vengeance of the ugly man who considers himself a superior being, who loves and is turned down. Perhaps, indeed, so did Vincent Rowland have a motive. Or Doctor Baldwin, unapt to do such a deed, yet with opportunities, as you very wisely suggest. Again, the brother would have a million-dollar reason for wishing to get rid of his sister—and God knows he would not be the first brother to kill his sister with tricky deceitfulness and for the same reason. I could go on, widening the list, but for our purposes the ones I have named are sufficient."

"I believe there was more than one murderer. There were at least two. Whatever happened, it was too complicated for just one person to get away with it," declared Dougherty fervently.

"Bravo, Dougherty," cried Thatcher Colt. "Your reasoning sounds accurate. But what if the poor girls were the accomplices in their own execution?"

"I hadn't thought of that," confessed Dougherty. "Sounds metaphysical again. How could they be?"

"I don't know—but there are several theories that occur to me."

"The very look of the corpse," declared Dougherty, "suggested poison to me. Have you formed any notion as to what kind of poison might have been used?"

"Not in the least. But Multooler has promised the earliest possible word. In any case, I still feel we are dealing with a highly superior criminal intelligence. Even as far as we have gone, we can see that the plan was outrageously well worked out."

Colt lit his pipe.

"If the poison," he resumed, "had reached the girl on the tip of an arrow blown from a blow-gun, a sabarcand, or something of that sort our job would have been much simpler. But Multooler says there is not an open wound on her body. Our guilty one has already evinced a truly infernal cunning, thinking to commit the perfect crime, no doubt. Of course we three in this room know there is no such thing. There is always a flaw in these perfectly planned atrocities. There is a flaw somewhere in this pent-house business tonight—only we haven't found it yet."

The telephone bell rang. From my extension, I heard the brittle voice of the Assistant Medical Examiner greeting Thatcher Colt:

"Hello, Mr. Colt! Say, this case gets funnier every time you turn around. I don't care how mysterious it sounds, it begins to look like those two girls died natural deaths. At least, I can't find any poison in them."

I heard the sharp intake of Colt's breath. It was a body blow to his plans. What hope was there of tracing a murder, if the police were unable to prove the girls had died unnaturally?

"How thorough was your examination?" asked the Commissioner.

"I had six assistants working with me—we went through everything including the viscera."

"You found no symptoms at all?" demanded Colt, amazed.

"Well, I found a very queer condition in both cadavers, but I don't know what it means. There was a congestion of the muscles around the two hearts, you see—sufficient to cause death. But the valves of the hearts showed every indication that they had been functioning properly all their lives.

"Just one minute," interrupted Colt. "Are you certain of that last statement?"

"Of course, Mr. Colt!"

Economic Ills Present a National Health Problem

Increase in Infectious and Deficiency Diseases Proves the Necessity of Avoiding Worry and Giving Careful Attention to Diet, Sleep and Exercise

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I CAN think of nothing more timely than to warn you of the present need for conservation of strength and health. Reports from many hospitals and welfare agencies indicate an increase of illness throughout the land.

Dr. Copeland

Though the death rate for the past two years has been low, there has been a definite increase in the infectious and deficiency diseases, showing that the need of proper attention to diet and health is of national importance and must not be neglected.

In times of economic stress it is more necessary than ever to cultivate healthful habits. Worry is often worse than disease. Worry interferes with appetite and normal digestion. Loss of appetite, gastric distress, constipation, loss of weight, headache, disturbed sleep and other conditions too numerous to mention can be traced to worry.

If you have problems, remember that ill health will make your load heavier. Above all, do not economize by cutting down on your food and the necessary rest and recreation. Eat freely of fruits and vegetables. Meals should be regular and ample time should be set aside for each meal.

Drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily. Proper daily elimination is necessary. Alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee and condiments should be taken in extreme moderation and drugs should be avoided.

A minimum of eight hours of sleep is necessary for the average individual. Remember that with lack of sleep it is necessary to expend twice as much energy to accomplish the same amount of work. If you have any difficulty in sleeping, take a brisk walk before bedtime. A warm bath and a warm glass of milk taken before retiring will be beneficial.

Of course, if you have an ailment it is necessary to receive the proper medical attention. If you cannot afford a private physician, do not neglect yourself but apply at a hospital clinic or board of health station, where you will receive medical treatment and advice. If you are physically fit, guard and respect your health, for it will give you greater resistance against attacks of worry and disease.

Get out in the open air as much as possible. Hold your chin up, your stomach in and your spine erect. Walk and act as if living were a joy. I have no doubt that this attitude will aid each of us to deal successfully with the present distressing but temporary problems.

Answers to Health Queries

P. P. Q.—What do you advise for constipation?

A.—Correct your diet and avoid poor elimination. For further particulars send self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

O. B. Q.—I am 18, 4 ft. 10 inches tall, what should I weigh?

A.—You should weigh about 108 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

H. B. Q.—Would dark glasses relieve eye-strain?

A.—Possibly. But it would be wise to have your eyes examined to determine whether or not you need glasses.

Mrs. B. Q.—Is deep breathing good for one who has a spot on the lung?

A.—Yes; should prove helful.

W. J. J. Q.—What causes itching of the legs?

A.—This may be due to pruritis, caused by constipation or auto-intoxication. Certain diseases of the nervous system may also cause this condition. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question

Miss G. A. Q.—What do you advise for dry brittle nails?

A.—Soak them in warm olive oil. This should prove helpful.

A. J. Q—Can a large nose be reduced?

A.—Consult a plastic surgeon.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Using newspapers to study for a screen role is the expedient by which Lionel Barrymore prepared for his part as the United States senator in "The Washington Masquerade," new drama of national politics showing at the Cliftona Theatre today and tomorrow.

"I secured every newspaper item I could find about the Senate and all speeches and details of the tax legislation," explained Barrymore in a recent interview. "By studying them I found out what sort of a character a senator in action would be.

"I don't know any senators and never was in politics, but the newspaper and wire service items gave me a better idea than I could have obtained by actually being on the floor of the Senate."

Karen Morley has the chief feminine role in "The Washington Masquerade," and the cast also includes Diane Sinclair and Nils Asther.

COUNTY BILLS ARE REPORTED

The following bills were allowed by the County Commissioners, Monday.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

THE CAUSE AND ITS EFFECT

"Big business with its high prices and closing out all little business has put out of employment millions of men; they have demolished their own market. Little business is the market for what big business produces. They have killed the business life of America. If they cntinue the cause an awful crash will soon come. Tax payers failing to pay taxes are increasing by thousands. The time is near when county courts, county institutions, city governments, city institutions, state governments and state institutions will have to close. The states will own all of the prnperay and there will be no tax money to keep up these institutions which will add millions more to the unemployed.

"Before some of the leaders of our nation try to advise other natins how to start business and prosper, it would be more wise to have leaders of other nations to come and see the fine prosperous condition of America."

Joseph Eagleston, Darby.

RARE PLANT BLOOMS

PARIS— The Victoria Regia, one of the rarest tropical plants ever transplanted to a northern climate, is now blooming again at the Paris Museum of Natural History for the first time in forty year. Enormous white flowers have appeared among the large leaves and are expected to continue blooming for several days before going to sleep again for perhaps half a century.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1932

Astrologers read this as a favorable day in which domestic affairs run along smoothly. Harmony prevails today; people will be sunny and genial and take things as they are, it is prophesied.

The position of the planets conduce to a desire for company, ease and comfort. Sympathetic understanding, courtesy and cheer will predominate.

This should be a fortunate and pleasant day for card parties and club meetings; amusement parks and concerts will afford much pleasure and the newspapers are likely to devote considerable space to social functions and affairs of charity.

It is a delightful day for lake trips and rowing in the parks; interesting programs are expected on the radio. Children's wards in hospitals and charitable institutions should have many visitors and the young folks should enjoy the day, especially during the afternoon and evening hours.

Artists are likely to have their work on display today and the art galleries should draw many visitors. Dressmakers should turn out satisfactory work; this may be an active day for the fruit and ice cream stores also movies, it is foretold.

Department stores should have their advertisements in today's papers, for children's wear dresses and fancy goods. The vibrations tend toward excellent window displays designed to attract the public.

Those born between the last week in February, May and November should be careful of new acquaintances; their tendency to form ideals causes them many disappointments.

Children born on this day have a great deal of tact and diplomacy; they are adapted for literary work and books and are fond of reading.

Edmund Gosse, eminent literary critic, was born on this day. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Girolamo Savonrola, Italian monk and martyr; Herbert George Wells, English novelist and historian.

"SURE THING" SUICIDE

COLFAX, Ill.—U. S. Lyons, 68, a farmer, wanted to make a "sure thing" of his suicide. He fastened a pipe to the exhaust of his auto truck in his garage, shut the garage doors, lay down at the rear of the pipe exhaust, and then applied a rag soaked in chloroform to his nose while he left the truck's motor running. He died.

ROOSEVELT INVADES PRESIDENT'S STATE

ENROUTE TO SAN FRANCISCO ON THE ROOSEVERT SPECIAL, Sept. 22.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt invaded the home state of President Hoover today with the most vigorous challenge that he has yet flung down to his Republican opponent.

The Roosevelt challenge was on the power issue. For the first time on his western tour, the Democratic nominee took off his oratorical gloves at Portland last night and hit hard at Mr. Hoover and his policies.

He portrayed Mr. Hoover as the servant of the private power interest. His policy with regards to the federal power commission, is vetos of several Muscle Shoals bills, and his "closing the White House doors to the public interest in the St. Lawrence project" all demonstrate, Gov. Roosevelt charged, "that the Republican policy is dominated by private rather than public interest."

ASSAILS INSULLS

For his own part, Gov. Roosevelt vigorously assailed "the Insull monstrosity" and its ilk, and advocated a policy of strict federal regulation of interstate power, of holding companies, and of pitiless publicity" for all details of public utility operation and ownership.

And in a dramatic conclusion to his speech, he took cognizance of the charge of "radicalism" which has been laid against him in some quarters.

"To the people of this country," said Roosevelt, "I have but one answer on this subject.

"Judge me by the enemies I have made."

After long applause, he added. "judge me by the selfish purpose of these utility leaders who have talked of radicalism while they were selling water stock to the people and using the schools to deceive the coming generation.

"My policy is as radical as American liberty. As radical as the constitution of the United States."

An then after more applause he said. "Never shall the federal government part with its sovereignty and control over its power while I am president of the United States."

16,000 LISTEN

Some 10,000 people in Portland's civic auditorium roared their approval of Gov. Roosevelt's vigorous attack on the President Hoover and the Republican policy with respect to power. The power issue is a live one in the Pacific northwest, and his audience was keenly appreciative.

Gov. Roosevelt charged that there had been a "systematic, subtle, deliberate and unprincipled campaign of misinformation about the question of utilities control. He used the words "lies and falsehoods" in describing the way "this information has been bought and paid for by certain private utility corporations." They have overcapitalized themselves, he charged, to the extent of some $520,000,000 and the American people are the losers to the extent that they are now expected "to provide profits for this amount of watered stock."

OFFICERS SEEK REFUND MONEY

Williams-Co Men Admit $37,600 Shortage By Playing Markets.

BRYAN, Sept. 22.—Details of the alleged $37,600 shortage in the Williams-co treasurer's office probably will be placed before the grand jury convening October 3, Prosecuting attorney Charles Stahl stated today.

Grand jury investigation of the alleged shortage, which is said to have been incurred through stock market speculations with Fort Wayne, Ind., "bucket shop," loomed while Lewis H. Robb, county treasurer, Prather Hitt, deputy treasurer, were reported to be out making desperate efforts to refund the money.

Definite action in the case, it was understood, has been postponed pending the success of Robb and Hitt to "make good" the alleged deficit. A meeting of the Williams-co commissioners will be held probably Saturday to decide what action is to be taken.

It was reported that demand will be made for the resignations of Hitt and Robb. The latter is a candidate for re-election.

Revelation of the alleged shortage was made yesterday by Hitt in a statement to Prosecuting attorney Stahl and State Examiner Walter L. Dean.

PICKERAL SPEAKS

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 22.—William G. Pickrel, Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio, speaking today at Democratic campaign meetings here declared "The Hoover administration brings exaggerated wealth to a few and misery and disaster to the masses." He also charged the President with evasion on the prohibition question.

"The policy of domination of business, large and small, by a few groups is the keynote of the Hoover administration," the Ohio official added. "The results of that policy are before us today. A vote for Hoover means a continuance of that policy."

TIGHTEN WEB ABOUT DAVIS

Some of Lucky Number Prize Winners Introduced By Government.

NEW YORK, N. Y. Sept. 22.—Some of the "lucky number" prize winners of the Moose charity balls, alleged by the government to have been lotteries, were presented from the witness stand at the trial today of U. S. Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, charged with violation of the National lottery laws.

Mrs. Mary Mychlin, of Astoria, N. Y., testified for the government that she had bought two fifty cent tickets for the 1931 ball for her two-year-old twin daughters and one of them won $5,000.

Mrs. Mychlin, with the excitement of it all still in her voice, testified she had the money put in trust for her daughter.

She said when she bought the ticket it had printed on it that $15,000 in prizes would be distributed, with $50,000 for first prize.

GROCERY WRECKED

MARION, Sept. 22.—A bomb explosion today partly wrecked the grocery store of Frank Vigelo here.

The blast, which occurred shortly after midnight, endangered the lives of Vigelo, his wife and daughter, Jeannette, 20, and a roomer, who occupy an apartment above the grocery store.

Shortly after the explosion, police took into custody Joe Cafagno, 39, of Delaware. Cafagno, who was said to have quarreled recently with the Vigelo's, was held for questioning.

SOUGHT WATER FOR RABBIT BOY DROWNS

LIMA, Sept. 22.— Losing his balance when he reached down into a spring to obtain water for his pet rabbits, David Seybold, 4, was dead today—a victim of drowning. The pool in which the child lost his life was only three feet in depth.

SEEK FUNDS

Lawrence M. Judd, governor of Hawaii, as he left Chicago for Washington, D. C., where he will seek a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for Hawaii. Governor Judd stated in an interview that, while there have been no failures of banks or trust companies in the islands since 1922, the world economic recession had hurt the Hawaiian sugar trade, principal activity of the islands.

First Round of Solon's Trial

Following the first day of his trial on charges of participating in the illegal lotteries operated by the Loyal Order of the Moose, of which he is an official, Senator James J. Davis (center) of Pennsylvania is shown as he left the Federal Court at New York with his attorneys. Senator Davis is accused of having received $172,000 personally from two Moose contests. It is rumored that former President Calvin Coolidge, in whose cabinet Davis served, would appear as a character witness.

the Allied Forces have touched on their campaign, (more than 500 leading population centers from coast to coast) local organizations of Allied Citizens and Allied Youth have been formed to carry on the work.

NOT ASSOCIATED

The Allied Forces are not officially associated with any other group or organization, though they have with all others a common objective in support of prohibition and law enforcement. The present movement, its sponsors hope, will supplement the work of the various organizations supporting the amendment and bring together on a united front all citizens favoring prohibition.

Among its national sponsors are Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, William G. McAdoo, Senator Arthur Capper, Bishop William F. McDowell, Admiral William S. Sims, Coach A. A. Stagg, Miss Jane Addams, Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Cabot, Dr. John R. Mott, Horace Greeley Eastburn, Dr. Thomas Nixon Carver, Hon. Joshua Levering, Mrs. Rushmore Patterson, Dr. S. GANDHI FAMISHED

Believe Hindus, Untouchables Will Reach Agreement To End Strike.

POONA, Sept. 22.—Famished by his "fast unto death" which already has lasted more than 48 hours, Mahatma Gandhi lay on his cell cot in the Yeravda jail here today, grimly conserving his energies for his struggle.

The Mahatma took nothing but water, which he sipped at regular intervals.

Meanwhile, it appeared likely that the political differences between the caste Hindus and the "untouchables" over the British electoral plan would be settled, thus enabling the starving "saint" to abandon his fast within two or three days.

Gandhi began the fast in protest against the British electoral

Isley S. Tate, 68-year-old cattle dealer of Bruceton Mills, W. Va., is shown here with his wife, Nellie, who is accused by one of their sons with being implicated in a plot to kill Tate to obtain his property and $2[illegible] he had received in a real estate deal. The youth, George Tate (inset), is held at Uniontown, Pa., where he is said to have admitted killing his father from ambush at the instigation of his mother and brothers. The elder Tate had been the survivor of dozens of shooting scrapes and was noted as being a "fast man with a gun."

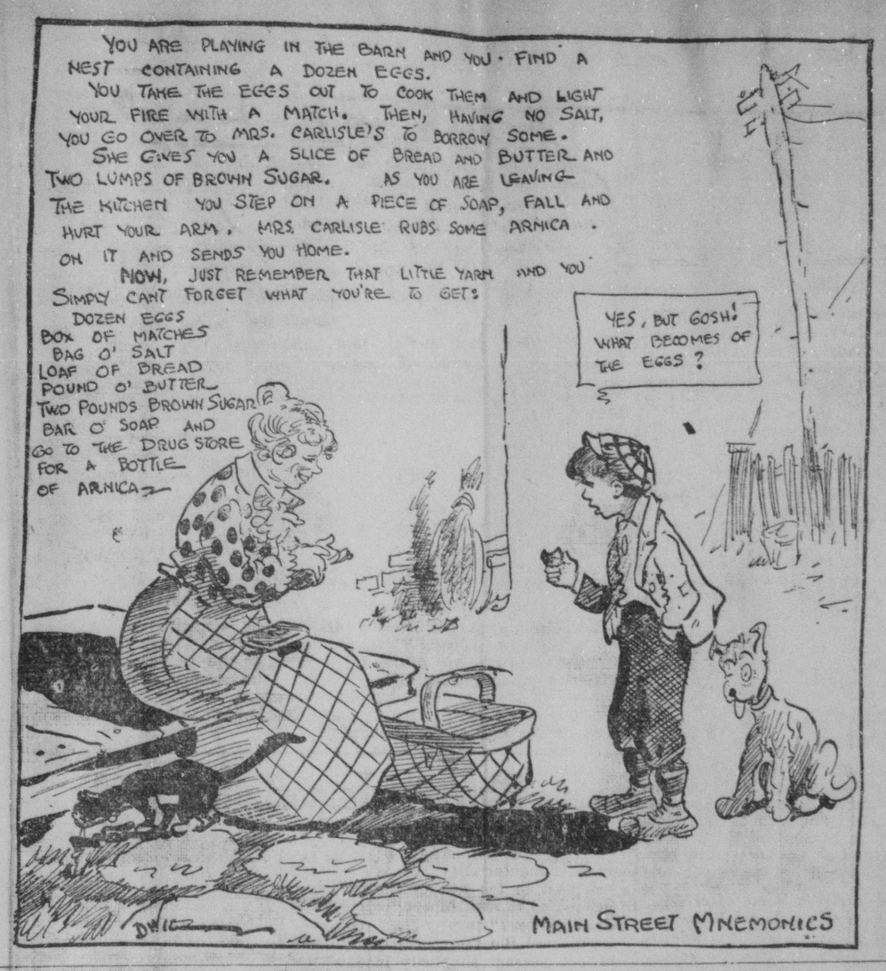
SCHOOL DAYS — By DWIG



Lynch, Colwell, Joseph Work

If you can make good butter or have good honey or fine eggs call Joseph Lynch, chairman of this section of the Pumpkin Show.

If you know how to make jellies, or can fruits or vegetables, the Pumpkin Show society will pay money in prizes for the best.

Harley Colwell is in charge of this department.

The little ones in the Children's Home always look forward to the candies they receive from the Pumpkin Show. Why not send a plate of candy to the Pumpkin Show—you might win a prize—then enjoy knowing that some boy or girl is getting a kick out of the candy. Henry Joseph is in charge of this display.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I. writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one of 19 and the other 18. My friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

Britain's Rebuff to Germany May Wreck Geneva Conference

* * * * * *

Reich Determined on Arms Equality Despite Opposition of France, United States and England. German Overtures to President De Valera Believed a Factor.

If the present international situation is any criterion, the forthcoming Geneva disarmament conference is due to flop even before it opens, marking the second time that such a jinx has upset the plans of the peacemakers. It will be recalled that the last conference was marred by the outbreak of the "unofficial" Sino-Japanese fracas. This time it is the refusal of France and Great Britain to accede to Germany's demand for arms equality that is to blame for the threatened wreck of the conference. In replying to Germany's demand, British Foreign Minister Sir John Simon made it plain that while Germany was bound by the Versailles Treaty, it is the purpose of the conference to cut down the armaments of other powers to a nearer level with Germany. The severe wording of the British reply is said to have been inspired by the disclosure that Germany had made overtures to President Eamonn De Valera of the Irish Free State, as next President of the League of Nations Council, bidding for his support at the coming meeting in Geneva. The British stand was a distinct shock to Germany. But War Minister Kurt von Schleicher, said to be the power behind the government of Chancellor Franz von Papen, is believed to be determined to accept no compromise but to move towards rearming, even should France threaten armed intervention. Official sentiment in the United States is ranged behind the Franco-British stand, it is said, it being the policy of the Hoover Administration to urge the scaling down of armaments and in no case countenancing the building up.

Trees Play An Important Part In History of World; Elm Is Leader

By MRS. HOWARD JONES, President Ohio History Day Association

If the groves were God's first temples then many a tree was a primitive shrine.

Many an important historical event took place under a tree. Elijah sat down under a juniper tree and prayed God to take away his life. The Magda Charter of England was hidden in an old oak tree.

Elms seem to have been particularly favored in the history of the United States. George Washington took command of the Continental Army July 3rd. 1775, under an elm tree at Cambridge. The tree under which William Penn made his famous treaty with the Indians was a widespreading elm near the City of Philadelphia.

In Pickaway-co stands a huge elm tree which has for ages stretched its arms to heaven. For centuries the birds have nested in its branches; animals have sought its shelter, and the plumed and painted Indian quenched his thirst at the spring which bubbled at its roots.

What tales this tree could tell were it gifted with speech. One story would be of surpassing interest—the story of the meeting between Lord Dunmore's men and the exasperated Indians to talk over terms of peace.

The early settlers called the tree "Logan Elm" in honor of the Mingo Chief "Logan" who was known as "Friend of the White Man."

Major John Boggs was the first pioneer to own the land upon which the elm stands, and he and his descendants protected it during their lives. Storms have battered and maimed the old tree but it still stands as it stood when Columbus, with his motley crew, touched the shores of San Salvador. In 1912 the Pickaway-co Historical Society formed a plan to save the tree, which was beginning to show the ravages of age, bought a few acres of land around the tree and donated it to the Ohio State Archaelogical and Historical Society for a State Park.

For twenty years exercises have been held under the tree once a year, and people in increasing numbers have visited the shrine to listen to talks by noted men and pay homage to the old monarch of the forest. The Pickaway Historical Society merged into The Ohio History Day Association who are carrying on the work.
